The Distaff Side...

By Jerry Wendt Women's Editor

She loves lettuce and carrots. She is gold, black and white. Her name is "Queenie." And most important, she is the focal point in capturing the attention of the preschool children at the Webster Preschool Child and Parent Education Center at West Grand Boulevard and Porter.

Mrs. Stanley Dolen, of Redford Township, who heads the center finds "Queenie," a guinea pig; an invaluable aid in teaching children nutrition, cleanliness and many other qualities essential for successful living.

Many people are trained to a job, some fall into it, and some people are born for it. Mrs. Dolen, we feel, is one of these latter people. She loves children and what is more important, genuinely understands them and the problems they encounter.

Her students are among what are commonly called the "underprivileged" and therefore have special problems in adapting to the schoolroom. We have come close to dispelling many wrong facts in this generation, and we feel one of the old ideas that is going by the board is that certain children are unable to learn. Mrs. Dolen feels that children are only unable to "communicate" and she helps them to overcome these difficulties.

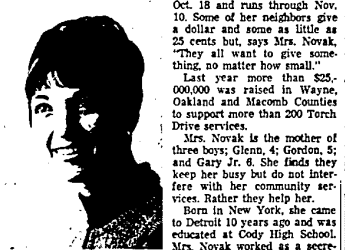

"QUEENIE" PREPARES HER nutrition lesson for tomorrow. Mrs. Stanley Dolen, looks on approvingly as "Queenie" selects a carrot, lettuce and some raw cabbage. Mrs. Dolen heads the Webster Preschool Child and Parent Education Center.

Western Wayne Resident Picked As Top Torch Drive Recruiter

For the past two years, Mrs. Gary Novak, 34551 Hively, Nardin, has worked as doorbell-ringer for the United Foundation Torch Drive. Last year she collected $11,722 from her neighbors.

This might seem a drop in the bucket in a drive that collects millions of dollars every year, but allowing only four percent of the $11.72 for costs, Mrs. Novak found that the $11.72 left could buy five visits of a crippled child to the Orthopaedic Clinic or pay for the rental of a wheelchair for two months for a homebound cancer patient.

MRS. GARY NOVAK

Because Mrs. Novak feels that her contribution in time and effort is of vital importance to the overall Torch Drive campaign, she has agreed to add her voice to recruit more door-to-door volunteers for the 1966 Torch Drive.

The United Foundation has selected her as one of five volunteers in the Metropolitan area who are representative of the thousands of workers, who call on their neighbors every year, bringing the message of the U.F. and its service directly into the homes.

This year Mrs. Novak will be campaigning again in the "Give Once for All" drive which starts Oct. 18 and runs through Nov. 10. Some of her neighbors give a dollar and some as little as 25 cents but, says Mrs. Novak, "they all want to give something, no matter how small."

Last year more than $25,000 was raised in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties to support more than 200 Torch Drive services.

Mrs. Novak is the mother of three boys: Glen, 4; Gordon, 2; and Gary Jr., 6. She finds they keep her busy but do not interfere with her community service. Rather they help her.

Born in New York, she came to Detroit 10 years ago and was educated at Cody High School. Mrs. Novak worked as a secretary until she married and still works two days a week as a demonstrator for the J. L. Hudson Co. Her husband is a salesman for the Lipton Tea Co.

Besides caring for her children, Mrs. Novak is active in the Stottmeyer School PTA. The Novaks both golf and are avid modern dance enthusiasts.

She first interests the child in "Queenie" and then gently points out how careful "Queenie" is of her diet. "See how she likes lettuce and carrots," she urges, and the child, forgetting her shyness watches in fascination. Then she tells them how Queenie likes a clean home. Various teams are appointed to keep her cage clean, and to keep her supplied with fresh water. Then she will ask the child, "What colors are Queenie's coat?" and the child who was formerly locked in a wall of loneliness will begin to count, "black, gold, etc."

Her children, are contrary to the overly aggressive child of today, problems in reticence and lack of initiative. Mrs. Dolen feels it is her duty to bring a certain amount of spontaneity into their life and begin the business of helping them adjust to society. She enlists the help of the parents and group activities are planned for all of them.

"More troublesome behavior springs from hunger" said Mrs. Dolen "then anything else." From this belief she organized the "snack" period in the morning and afternoon. A time when she and her "team" sit down with the children and enjoy crackers and milk, or cereal. Most of the children are insecure, and some of them don't even know their given names. She tries to make them feel proud and confident and give them a sense of importance.

How well she had succeeded was illustrated in some films she had taken of their Easter party. Her husband of whom she says, "I couldn't do a thing without his aid" obligingly showed us the slides (Stanley Dolen is chief training director for the Michigan Employment Security Commission).

We simply couldn't believe the bright-eyed happy children were the same ones who had in the beginning been such behavior problems. The Easter party was a high point in their lives and a community project. Hearing a neighboring kindergarten was having a party they asked Mrs. Dolen if they could have one. She agreed. The mothers saved cottage cheese cartons for the Easter baskets made in class.

On the appointed day, the children resplendent in hats and bow ties they had made themselves took a visit to the kindergarten. This also served the purpose to acquaint the children with the class they would enter in a year or so.

Mrs. Dolen's next project is a trip (with the mothers) to Oakland Hills Farms. Many of the children have never seen a farm and this will be a novelty for them.

We wish there was some way to impart to people how impressed we have been with the value of Mrs. Dolen's ideas. Many of these children will be saved from "special education classes" or failure in the school room because of this pre-school attention to their problems. Once they are confronted with the routine of learning, without this preparation, they will be overcome. We feel hopeful that someday, this will be a part of every school program.

U. of D. To Hold Summer Classes For Women Resuming College Careers

A summer class designed to assist women who plan to resume their college careers in June, July, August, and September will be offered by the University of Detroit starting May 3.

The class, entitled "Adult Women Prepare for New Role Expectations," is a four-week non-credit program and is designed to orientate today's adult woman on her return to school. The class meets each Tuesday evening at 7:30 from May 3 to May 24.

Topics to be covered in the program include: Analysis of the changing life patterns of women and professional and occupational opportunities. There will also be individual counseling.

The course will cover today's occupational opportunities, training required, and salary expectations.

This new course is sponsored by the U. of D. guidance counselors, placement officers and administrators who are experts in the fields of representation, education, business, secretarial advancement, civic and public service, science, data processing, fine arts, and communication arts.

For further information call the U. of D. Center for Continuing Education at 342-1000.

Toastmasters Club
Motor City Speakers Toastmasters Club will meet on Monday, April 23, 7 p.m., in Hillside Inn on Plymouth Road. An interesting program is planned. Visitors are invited to attend.
