

Kelley Seeks Agreement With PCHA

The Peoples Community Hospital Authority may soon come under the supervision of the State Attorney General if a proposed consent agreement is ratified tomorrow (Thursday) night by the PCHA Board of Directors.

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has agreed to drop the civil suit against the PCHA in Ingham County Circuit Court providing the attorney general is giving lasting supervisory powers over the Hospital Authority.

The tentative agreement was reached between Kelley and attorneys of the Authority's legal firm of Cozad, Shangel and Smith.

If the Board of Directors approves the consent agreement it would be submitted to Ingham County Circuit Court for final approval.

Some of the provisions of the proposed agreement would prohibit:

- Use of Authority funds for private or personal use by PCHA board members, officers, agents or employees.
- Use of PCHA funds for travel, entertainment or other expense except in accordance with specific procedures to be outlined in the consent agreement.
- Board members, officers or employees of PCHA from doing business with the Authority.
- Any transfer of PCHA assets unless approved by the court after notice to the attorney general.
- The Board of Directors from delegating any of its authority.
- The court would maintain jurisdiction over the Authority to enforce compliance to the agreement and to punish violations.

Although Kelley is taking steps to prevent a transfer of the PCHA to a private corporation, a bill has passed the State Senate which would make easier such action.

The bill, introduced by State Senator Terry Troutt (D-Romulus), requires only a majority vote of the board of directors to transfer PCHA's assets to a private enterprise.

A counter bill introduced in the House by Rep. Vicent Pettipiece (D-Wayne) retains the 66% vote requirement presently in force to allow member communities to withdraw. Pettipiece's bill passed the House 90-0 and was referred to the Senate.

Troutt's bill passed the Senate after an unsuccessful attempt by Sen. Roger Craig (D-DeARBorn) to recall the legislation after hearing reports of an investment firm being willing to provide $18 million to a private group to purchase the PCHA.

Both bills have been sent to a joint conference committee of the House and Senate and if a compromise is not reached by the middle of May both will die.

If the board of directors approves the consent agreement, however, neither bill will be necessary since any transfer of PCHA to a private corporation would have to receive the approval of the attorney general.

Such an agreement, in effect, would serve part of the intent of Pettipiece's bill and would defeat part of the purpose of Troutt's legislation.

Schoolcraft Sends Ten To Meeting

Ten members of the Circle K Club, of Schoolcraft College, will be among the 150 members of the Michigan District of Circle K International attending the 11th annual convention of the college service organization at the Oakland University in Rochester, Mich., April 29 through May 1.

The Schoolcraft delegation includes: Chairman Larry Adams of Plymouth; Howard Wright, Marvin Solaun, Leon and Larry Ott and Warner Launowien of Livonia; Greg Houghlink, Lynn Allen and Gerry Beam of Plymouth, and Mike Driskoll of Inkster.

The Schoolcraft Circle K Club is sponsored by the Plymouth Kiwanis Club with the co-operation of other Kiwanis Clubs in the college district.

Circle K of International is a service organization for college men, sponsored by Kiwanis International, and maintaining the same ideals and objectives. There are more than 12,000 members in the international organization, representing a total of over 670 clubs on as many college campuses.

The Michigan District is one of 29 covering the United States and Canada. The District sponsored by the Michigan District of Kiwanis International through the individual Kiwanis Clubs, has a membership of 280 men on 18 Michigan college campuses.

High point of the three-day meeting will be the election of the 1966-67 District officers and board members a governor, secretary, treasurer and four lieutenant governors on Sunday, May 1.

The gubernatorial incumbent is R. James Girardot, a student at Oakland University. He was elected to the post in the Midland convention a year ago and will preside over the Oakland sessions.

Hosts for the 11th annual Circle K convention will be the Oakland University club assisted by members of the Rochester Kiwanis Club.

Principal speakers, in addition to Girardot, will be John Ladinger, president of Circle K International from London, Ontario; Thomas Ehrig, an International Trustee from Reading, Pa.; and Harry Elze, Michigan Governor of the Michigan Kiwanis District from Holt.

Harry Young, one of the founders of Kiwanis who resides in Detroit, will be a special guest.

Rev. Busse, a Rochester minister who was a member of the first Circle K Club at Carthage in Carthage, Ill., will deliver the keynote address on Saturday, April 30.

Other highlights will be the annual Michigan District K Achievement contest, Single Service award, the historical contest and several other awards.

Physical Ed Teachers Are Much in Demand

ANN ARBOR—A chronic need for women physical education instructors exists in the nation today, say two members of the physical education department of The University of Michigan.

Assistant professors Shirley Howard and Evelyn Schurr explain that although there has been a substantial need for more women entering the field about the last 10 years, the problem has increased steadily the past several years. Today it is acute.

"To give some idea of the need," says Dr. Howard, "the Placement Bureau at the University reported that the University received more than 1,100 requests for women physical education teachers at the elementary and secondary levels. We had only 28 applicants for those positions."

Some indication of why there are not enough women entering the field, says Dr. Schurr, is the rigorous undergraduate training program women must complete for certification.

Contrary to popular belief, she points out, physical education majors do not spend four years "playing games." Women do have "physical education activities" as part of their studies, but they are in addition to other subjects.

"In science alone," say Dr. Schurr, "students must take such courses as zoology, psychology, anatomy, physiology, and kinesiology to gain a basic knowledge of the mechanism of the body."

"Furthermore," she noted, "the girls take these courses from the department in which they are offered. As a result, they end up taking courses in the Medical School and the highly specialized science departments on campus—not an easy task."

In addition, mentions Dr. Howard, physical education majors must also work in the areas of educational theory.

"Presently at the University," she says, "the classroom theory is supplemented by practical supervised experience, with students of all ages.

These include assisting with college physical education courses when a junior, and then directed teaching on the elementary and secondary levels as a senior. The result after four years is a bonafide teacher."

Dr. Howard also emphasized the problems at the college level. "Last year," she says, "we had seven candidates to fill 235 requests."

The main reason there, says Dr. Schurr, "is that most colleges require at least a master's degree. Most girls either get married or leave the profession before qualifying to teach at the college level."

Women physical education teachers need not have exceptional athletic ability, say the two U-M staff members, but rather an ability to teach the various skills to their students.
