Garage Liner Ends That Unsightly Look

If, when you open your garage from the floor and utilize the space of assorted odds and ends, you've got a problem—beautifully the inside of the garage at the same time, is with home owners.

Most people take great pride in the neatness of their homes, both inside and outside. But the attractive appearance is often marred by the clutter inside their garages.

Since most garages face the street, the clutter is the first thing your neighbors notice when you open the garage door. Many garages are so crowded there's no room for cars.

The problem is caused by the fact that the garage is used for storing many things other than cars. Since all the fittings are in the way, the clutter is monopolize the floor space.

The solution is to remove as many items as possible from the garage.

Soil Is Vital Resource Of Farms, Gardens

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. Soil, deep, fertile and well-drained is needed for profitable farming and productive gardens.

Flowing water following rains carries away soil, forming ditches in fields and garden plots. At homesites, even when you start with good soil, bulldozers push it ruthlessly aside, or bury it deeply under construction debris.

Regardless of what you have, soil care, The Pennsylvania State University offers a course in Soil Fertility, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. The entire course will be sent to you by mail.

Anyone can enroll by mail.

Keep sloping land in sod to prevent soil erosion. Feed your crops commercial fertilizers. In late summer, plant green manure crops, like domestic ryegrass, for winter cover.

Follow these practices a few years and you'll get rich, friable soil in fields and gardens.
