

U of D Slates Summer Season With Drama and Music

Three plays and two musicals are slated for the summer season of the University of Detroit Theatre, which will begin on July 7 to 31 in the U. of D. Memorial Building.

The schedule includes: "Converting the 8,500-seat arena into an 'intimate' theatre," says William Berner, opening the Rev. James Caine, S.J., Thursday, July 7, chairman of the U. of D. Theatre. "Oh Dad, Poor Dad."

Can Enroll in CYO Program

Applications can be secured now for the CYO Camp for Boys on the shores of Lake Michigan. Limited opportunities and a half year of age through to enroll are available to boys 13. The fee is $60 for a two week camp, which includes transportation, food, and insurance. Registration, with the added dimension of spiritual refreshment too. The camp has a resident CYO chaplain and the boys have an opportunity to attend daily on Michigan Avenue, 48226. Call 963-Mass and receive the sacrament.

Mama's Hung Y. in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad" of Ballet and the Jeanne Marzocchi Theatre of Music will offer a joint program July 19, 20 and 21. All performances begin at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the U. of D. Memorial Building box office. There are special reduced price season tickets covering all five events.

"Don Juan in Hell," the G. B. Shaw middle act of "Man and Superman," opening Friday, July 15. Plays will be performed on a varied schedule Wednesdays through Sundays. Tuesday evening will be concert night. The Conata Academy will present vocal arrangements from pre-Renaissance through Elizabethan periods on July 12 and 26.

The Rosemarie Floyd School of Ballet and the Jeanne Marzocchi Theatre of Music will offer a joint program July 19, 20 and 21. All performances begin at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the U. of D. Memorial Building box office. There are special reduced price season tickets covering all five events.

The production will be set on a multi-level unit set which doubles for interiors and exteriors, a church, a porch and a boardwalk. While the U. of D. productions draw actors on and off the campus, from alumni and students, the "Don Juan in Hell" show is all professional.

In this instance the U. of D. Theatre serves as a holding agency for a play produced and directed by Hal Youngblood. WJR producer who recently won a Detroit Press Club award for his Julie Harris radio documentary. The cast includes Jimmy Vance of WJR, Jack Kessler, veteran WJR director and local actor, and Betty Wright.

"Don Juan in Hell" was written by Shaw as an act of "Man and Superman." Because of its length it is usually presented as a separate play. No scenery is used and the actors perform from stools with scripts before them on music stands.

off one third of the arena for slatted in the front lobby, with the Theatre area, with main floor chairs and limited seating in the stadium area. A sidewalk cafe will be in the lobby.

Youth Chorale To Present Final Concert Before Tour

The 1966 Michigan Youth Chorale will present its last concert prior to leaving for a South American tour, at Southfield Senior High School, Sunday, June 19 beginning at 2 p.m.

Art Competition Open To Youngsters in Area

The Central Business District Association today announced the beginning of an annual "Children's Art Competition." Entries will be accepted during the period of June 15 through July 15. The prime reason of introducing the program is to stimulate the imaginations of children, even further into the world of art. So many world art educators today firmly believe that a child's search for self-affirmation lies through this culture, and CBDA is interested in the concept and hopes to encourage wide participation and interest!

This competition is offered to children between the ages of five and 10 years, and the size of the art entries cannot exceed 18 by 24 inches in proportion and should be mounted on cardboard. A choice of Crayon, Paint, and or Collage will be accepted—and the theme of "Love"—whether it be love of a bird, tree, flower, the sky, friends, a pet, or Mom and Dad, must be used in the official entry. The child's name, age, address, phone number, and school must be printed on the back of the entry.

Top Teens Coming To Olympia

Two of England's top teen singing groups, The Hermit and The Animals, have signed to appear at Olympia Stadium July 28. The groups are making a joint tour of the country, hitting 32 cities in a little better than a month and a half. The Animals, who skyrocketed to fame in 1964 with their hit record, "House of the Rising Sun," currently have one of the best-selling albums in the United States in "The Best of the Animals."

Making the tour with The Animals is Barry Jenkins, 22-year-old drummer, who three months ago replaced John Steel. Steel dropped out of the group after his marriage. Other members of The Animals are vocalist Eric Burdon, lead guitarist Hilton Valentine, organist Dave Rowberry and bass guitarist Chas Chandler. For the Hermits, this will be their first trip into Detroit since the release of their latest movie, "Hold On." Their album from the movie is on the best seller list as is one of the songs from the album, "Leaning on the Lamp Post." The youthful Hermits have several American television appearances and two movies to their credit. Led by 18-year-old Peter Noone as "Hermes," the Hermits have Karl Green, Keith Hopwood and Derek Leckenby on guitars and Barry Whitman on drums.

Tickets for the show, at 8 p.m., are now on sale at Olympia. The box office is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday thru Friday.
