He is a Past President of the Farmington Exchange Club and several years ago was the recipient of the Jaycee's Distinguished Service Award if you haven't guessed by now, we'll add that he is an independent young fellow who certainly isn't green around the gills and although you may see him around brook and date it doesn't necessarily mean that he's an outdoorsman. Last week's Bearded Mystery Man was Bruce Habermehl.

Opposing Views

tion say that incorporation would bring us a windfall of $48,700 from state and local tax funds. However, such money can be used only to maintain our roads. The equipment and a Department of Public Works would have to come out of local taxes. Comparisons show that these would cost us close to $750,000.

"Also, a letter from Mr. Paul Van Roekel, County Highway Engineer, states that we would have to pay 17.5 per cent of the cost of all state trunk line construction inside the city limits exclusive of Federal participation... a portion of the cost of I-75 from Eight Mile to I-696... construction of the new highway to a freeway... and other work done on I-96.

"There will still be 30 miles of two-lane pavements which will have to be widened to at least four lanes sooner or later... the city would pay half the cost... A city street system of approximately 100 miles of major streets and 160 miles of local streets will have to be maintained and improved.

THE CHARTER

"The proponents of incorporation say that our charter will have provisions to limit the city's taxing powers. In other words, they promise to write a charter that will make the new city as much like a township as possible. Why then, they ask, do we have a city at all?

"Take away the city taxing and spending powers by charter incorporation and all you gain by name—and the risk that the tax limitations will be removed at future elections that may be just around the corner. A city income tax is always a possibility.

"The charter still has to be written to incorporate alleged protections. The charter commission might find the promised limitations on taxing and spending were not practical after they make a closer study. Then the charter has to be approved in another election... or a second or third election.

"We already have, right now, much more than the promised benefits and privileges of a home rule charter... But our charter limitations can be changed. Most cities... do eventually change the charters under which they started... A simple majority in any... election is all that is needed to alter all the limitations in which we placed so much faith."

ANNEXATION

"The example of the Southwest End should have disposed of the annexation bugaboo. No area, incorporated or unincorporated, large or small, can be annexed against the will of a majority of its voters. This rule holds true whether the area proposed to be annexed is a big piece of a little piece. Even if only 50 people live in the area, Farmington City can't annex them, unless a majority of the 50 also vote for annexation. In 1965, the attempt of Farmington City to annex a small portion of Township territory was defeated. There were only 145 voters in that election, but 58.62 per cent of the voters said 'No' to annexation."

HOUSING CODE

"The proponents of incorporation say, 'A home rule city will have stronger powers over old buildings through the State Housing Code.'

"We've had no trouble of that kind, under the Township government, of which we are aware. Such power is insufficient reason to incorporate as a home rule city; the disadvantages of incorporation such as greatly increased taxes, vulnerability to an income tax, threat to the education of our children, etc. far outweigh a little more power over old buildings. Why give up all the present advantages we now have under Township government?

"Mass housing on small lots cannot now be built in this area, because most of the Township is zoned for country-size lots of one-third acre and larger. Township of Farmington vs Padover established the Township's power to regulate large lot sizes. It was fought through the Township expense, through the Birmingham Supreme Court. We know of no neighboring city that has this high a standard lot sizes. Anyway, this is where we live.

"We're developing fast enough under Township government. Let's not open the floodgates to unsound mushroom development. Under Township zoning new industry will be concentrated in the southwest end. Formation of a home rule city would not change that.

GIVE US A CHANCE

"The proponents of incorporation say: 'Give us a chance to show what incorporation can do for the Township. Yes vote on June 6 does not mean immediate incorporation. It means the voters have two years to approve a city charter. In the meantime, areas will be stabilized while we can calmly investigate our future course.'

"In plain English, we would have up to two years of uncertainty and turmoil and the expense in time and money of charter campaigns. Two years in which no concrete plan can be made for the Township because of its uncertain status. This would mean a 'Political No-Man's Land' for two years.

"At the end of that time, the outcome, at best, would be a charter giving us some of the privileges and obligations of a City Income Tax. 'But suppose at the end of that time we discovered we had acted hastily in incorporating? Could we return to our former status?

"Return to Township Status is next to impossible. The state governing vacation of incorporation will not permit filing a petition for that purpose without a two years of the effective date of incorporation. Such a petition must be signed by one-quarter of the registered voters of the city, to bring about a referendum on incorporation, and a two-thirds majority of the qualified electors must vote for vacation of incorporation, to disincorporate a city. An almost impossible hurdle!

A FINAL WORD

"The time for unburied status of the Township's needs was before the incorporation petition was filed — not after. Retention of our Township form of government will permit careful, unburied studies of what may be best for the future of Farmington Township. Incorporation now would be premature, unnecessary and very expensive to us. Let us vote 'No' on June 6, 1966, and retain our simple and effective Township form of government."

Parisi Says Twp Govt. Best For Farmington

Speaking to a packed hall at North Farmington High, Joseph A. Parisi Jr., Executive Director of the Michigan Townships Association offered some opinions on the relative value of the township form of government compared with others.

Parisi began his government experience in 1958 when he was elected justice of the peace. Subsequently, he held a number of state, national, and local positions to some of which he was appointed by the president of the United States. His two books on Township government have sold over 50,000 copies.

"Parisi said his words stem to be of particular value at this time. 'As a citizen and a moving ambassador for local government in this magnificent state, I have a very deep concern for the people in this area as they struggle with their consciences in the days ahead culminating with a election just fourteen days from today.'

"A CONTROVERSIAL issue for people to chew on once in a while is a good thing. It awakens their interest in their community, their government and the problems of life itself. More people come out of parsonages in a controversy than in the better prepared for life and many times just a little bit better off than they were before.

"It would be my fervent hope that in the days ahead, all of you stick to the issues involved in this community problem. Please don't make the same mistakes made in other communities who overlooked the real issues by indulging in personal animosities, sometimes bordering on character assassination.

"It's not fun to be on the receiving end, it's not much fun to watch, either. A man's character is a much life itself. Killing his character, kills him. And pitifully, those who attack a man's character reveal their own.

"In this hallowed hall of education tonight, I have seen the character on the faces of men and women which reflects the very greatness of our beloved nation. Here I have seen a little chunk of Valley Forge, Gettysburg, San Juan, Bataan, the Iwo Jima, and the great power of the nation in the world — its people."

"A NO OR YES vote on June 6, is not as important as the fact that it was cast on the basis of knowledge."

He then presented some points for consideration in voting. There were 1264 townships in Michigan in 1952. Now there are 1253, which means that eleven townships have opted to change their form. It requires a petition of 1 per cent and a simple majority of the voters to bring the matter of incorporation to a referendum, but it requires 25 per cent of the voters' names on a petition to incorporate and it necessitates a 66-2/3 per cent vote to carry.

Annexation and consolidation seem to be the greatest fears when an area considers incorporating. It is possible for a township to contract for services for life-saving and other types of services.

House Rule 2774 promulgating the one man, one vote status will correct inequities in representation on county boards of supervisors.

Cities should aim at an industrial, or 65 to 75 per cent industrial, or their tax program is not realistic. They do have more taxing power and to meet demands for the additional services required of city governments should not make the mistake of settling the millage too low.

PARISI POINTED out that citizens of the entire community have the right to ask both one and two questions of the township: What do I get? When do I get it? How much is it going to cost?

Subsequent to the meeting, the following telegram was received by the Enterprise: To the citizens of Farmington Township: This telegram is sent to clarify any doubt about my position on proposed incorporation of Farmington Township into a city. In my presentation at the North Farmington High School on May 24, I thought I made my position clear regarding the proposed city incorporation. I have not, do not, or do I contemplate advance in a controversy that Farmington Township become a city. I want to emphasize that this is my opinion only. When I make this statement I am representing not only myself, but the Farmington Township in Michigan is the most efficient, most economical, and the type of government which is truly an asset to the citizens.

Cotton, Director of Physical Education and Athletics for the Farmington Public Schools, announced this week Mason would deliver the main address to the Raider athletes due to receive recognition for their participation in sports at NFHS.
