

Serenade Band Invites Rusty Players To Join In

Now that summer is with us again, Farmington is planning for the summer music season with the return of rehearsals of the Farmington Summer Evening Serenade Band.

This band provides an opportunity for all musicians, both adults and talented young folks in the community who have an interest in music to get back to playing even though it may have been years since last they played their band instrument.

The rehearsals for the band will be held between 7 and 9 p.m. every Monday and Thursday evening in room 105-C (band room) of the Farmington Senior High school at 32000 Shiawassee beginning June 23.

There are some school-owned instruments available for use by those adults who need them to play. All adults are encouraged to dust off their instruments and come out for a summer of enjoyable participation in this band.

The main requirement for membership in this band is not an audition, but rather a desire to have fun with music.

Players on all band instruments are encouraged to join the group.
