Founders Festival — Attendance a "Must"

This community-wide endeavor doesn't just happen. It takes months of meetings, planning and leg-work. And, although the Board of Commerce spear-heads the event, their members are only a few of the many people who become involved.

Organizations, groups and in-dividuals all over Farmington — and from surrounding communities as well — are giving of their time, tal-ents, and money to make the Festi-val a success.

val a success.

This is one of those projects in which so many people are involved that one couldn't begin to list names. It is safe to say, however, that several hundred people are either already at work, or lined up to participate in

What is a "festival" In Farmington, it's an idea in action.

The idea, conceived by the Farmington Board of Commerce almost two years ago, took form last year in the shape of the Farmington Founder's Festival.

This year, on July 28, 29, and 30, the thoughts and plans of the Farmington Board of Commerce will again take active form and the second Farmington Founder's Festival will be underway.

This community-wide endeavor the founder is the face that the face together all of the people in the com-munity in a spirit of fun for a com-mon purpose: pride in their com-munity, its past and present, and fumunity, its past and present, and fu-ture.

Attendance is all that is expected of the majority of people in Farm-ington — though it is difficult to im-agine that anyone would want to miss the fun.

There will be something for everyone — refreshments, music, sales, games, contests, variety show, pa-rade, dancing, famous personalities — three days packed with fun, frolic

Hurrah For The Youth Of Farmington!

When a young couple rapidly rising to teen prominence in the record world appear for an interview looking bandbox fresh and in every way are handsome representatives of the human family . . .

When reports continue to come in about the really exemplary conduct of the more than 700 teen agers attending the weekly Fatac dances which could not be continued otherwise . . .

When news keeps cropping up when news keeps cropping up about junior achievements in many widely diversified fields of action . . . It is time to throw our hats ex-uberantly into the air and say, "Hurrah for the youth of Farmington!" In a recent magazine interview with Richard Buckminster Fuller, an idea genius of this century, he litted a heavy load of concern from the shoulders of the really "beat" generation (those over forty by admitting that he relates much more readily to the younger stratum of society because their horizons are so unlimited.

Letters Stolen
Eight letters, all containing checks, were stolen from the office of Dr. H. Teitel last week and some of them found later in

All over the world, as he lectures at the great universities, Fuller is kept at the lectern for hours after the formal lecture is finished discussing the enormous potential of the spaceage future. Neither he nor his audience is in the least intimidated by the specters of over-population, nuclear warfare, mass starvation nor any other bogey man of our craven creation.

But this gets far afield from the yout of Farmington, or does it?

We do, as parents have a tendency toward over-indulging our protected progency. Somehow they must be made more aware of the larger world which exists beyond their own comfortable orbit, but perhaps this will come about naturally.

will come about naturally.

As they grow larger, the world grows smaller. There is much more interchange between countries than ever before as students actually exchange living situations with each other.

Air travel is becoming one of life's commonplace experiences. Whisking people into new living patterns at the drop of a landing gear.

Let's take heart then. The younger generation is on its way.
