The Campfire Annual Candy Sale is GO... Count down and blast off was January 20 — estimated date of re-entry is February 6 (last day to sell candy).

Many groups in Farmington are busy selling their candy and telling the Campfire story. Some groups have Candyvans planned, some are selling in local stores, banks and shopping centers. This is one of the most important projects of the year as it helps support their group by defraying cost of trips, events and dues. The sale also makes possible camperships for girls who need a few more dollars to complete fees for camping in day camps, resident camps or group camping.

Camp Wathana in Holly, Campfire resident camp, is open year 'round for many activities of the council and individual groups. It is supported in part by the candy sale.

THE ANNUAL Exchange Day at North Farmington High School was attended by representatives of 16 foreign countries. Among those on hand were Cindy Bloommoetha from Thailand and Ross Smith from Australia. Ross is spending the school year at North Farmington High School.

16 Countries Represented At NFH Exchange Day Fete

One of the most interesting assemblies of the school year took place at North Farmington High School Friday, Jan. 12. It was the annual Exchange Day assembly when foreign students who are living with families in the area are invited to Farmington for the weekend.

Boys and girls from at least 16 different countries were present and were introduced to the student body by Karen Lovett, president of the North Farmington Exchange Club. Karen asked each of them questions about their own countries and their use of English was uniformly excellent and sprinkled with various charming accents.

The majority of the students stated that they had studied English at home for five or six years and they all had a good deal of knowledge about America.

Judy, a girl from New Zealand, seemed to speak for all the students when she thanked North Farmington for playing host to them saying that they all enjoy seeing another school and meeting and talking with each other.

Karen Lovett injected what she called "a commercial" half way through the proceedings when she told the NF students that homes were being sought for the 1967-68 school year.

For information about the AFS program and its requirements for the host families, telephone Mr. and Mrs. Griswold at GR. 6-0164.

School Mail Aids TB Fund Drive

The Student Council of North Farmington High School has sent $191.52 to the Tuberculosis Association of Southern Oakland County.

Christmas Seal Drive Chairman Sally Sietoff said the money represented the proceeds of the school's fourth annual drive project.

Students purchased the Christmas seals and used them as stamps to mail Christmas cards through the school's mail system.

Two teachers dressed as Santa Claus and Christmas Carol delivered the cards. More than 9,500 pieces of mail were sorted by a volunteer postal staff.
