Youth Pilot Program Set

Farmington's Youth Guidance Committee has begun the first of a series of week-day after school programs for youth of elementary and junior high age in the area. This pilot program will be limited for now to older elementary children in a one square mile area. The program will feature a physical education teacher three days per week for two hours after school. Games, sports and other activities will hopefully fill a serious need which exists in several local areas where children have evidenced some degree of delinquency and/or simply are lacking. Data collected by the Guidance Committee indicates that a large number of children in the community do not find any organized activities which are geographically, financially or socially available to them. The program is scheduled for 20 weeks, although funds for only the first five weeks are available at this time. It is hoped that local service organizations, businessmen, etc. will be interested and able to provide funds for continuing this pilot project and adding to it next year. The resulting benefits to the community in reduced vandalism and better juvenile citizenship will far outweigh any investment, it is felt by the Committee. It is expected that these week-day programs will supplement the FARC Saturday morning program scheduled for several weeks during this winter. The Youth Guidance Committee meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. at 3322 Grand River (across from the old city hall). Interested local citizens are invited. A number of programs designed to prevent delinquency in the Farmington area are waiting for interested volunteer staff members to get them activated.
