City, Union Sign First Contract

City officials last week signed Farmington's first union contract in history, covering employees in two departments — public works and water-and-sewer. The contract went into effect March 1, but it provides for no pay raises until the new fiscal year begins July 1.

Present for the signing in City Hall Tuesday evening were (from left): Raymond P. Lardie, committee-man for Local 1456 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO; Mrs. Treva Quinn, city clerk; Mayor Wilbur V. Bartherton; Clyde Alsop, staff representative for AFSCME Council 23; and Joseph DeVriendt, local union committeeman. The contract immediately provides time-and-a-half for overtime, a union dues check-off system, a formal grievance procedure and ground rules for seniority and promotion. A 19-cent pay hike will go into effect July 1, and the wage clause will be re-opened next year.

Semi-Completion At Power In '67

On the theory that half a school is better than none, construction is proceeding at Pennington High School with the hope that the eastern portion containing the academic core of the school can be completed by September, 1967.

"This will in no way hinder the completion of the remainder but will allow classes to begin for the numerous students in the junior high age group who are in need of additional facilities."

Construction of the school was delayed in its early stages by strike-causing setback in the time schedule.

NHHS Addition Set

An addition to North Farmington High School received approval at Monday evening's Board of Education meeting with a budget allotment not to exceed $100,000. Included in the expansion plans are an auto shop and a retail store classroom.

Chairman Richardson announced the appointment of James Platt, a member of the City Planning Commission, as chairman of a study group subcommittee on economic base and on local government data.

City Manager John Dinan, during a report on population, said one study showed the township has 391 persons per unit. In new apartments, however, the density is 21 persons per unit in other words, almost no children.

Kuhn Votes Mail On Daylight Time

State Sen. George Kuhn, R-Birmingham, was among the minority last week when the upper house of the Legislature voted 24-11 to exempt Michigan from the federal daylight saving time law.

"I voted my mail," said Kuhn. The overwhelming number of letters he received from Farmington and other areas in his district was in favor of daylight saving time.

Kuhn said senators from the western part of the state were largely responsible for the move toward exempting Michigan from DST. Sen. Thomas Schweigert, R-Peotony, was leader of the exemption movement.

The bill was sent to the House of Representatives, where it must also win approval if Michigan is to avoid DST.

State Rep. Raymond Baker, R-Farmington, said he leans in favor of DST.

Kuhn also said he voted in favor of a $50 million cut in the State made in the Medicaid program.

The cuts were first ordered by Gov. Romney when the state ran short of funds for the program, but Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley ruled that the governor was powerless to make the cuts himself.

The Senate vote was 21-17. All 20 Republicans and one Democrat lined up to make the cut, and the 17 remaining Democrats were opposed.

C'ville Swimming, Mat Cage, Gym Teams Win

By RHODA WEISS Clarencville High School teams ended the season the right way with a victory each.

The first three wins came last Tuesday, beginning with the swimming team up-setting John Glenn, 57-48. In a previous contest this season, John Glenn slaughtered the Trojans 63-36.

Three school records were set in this meet. One of them was by the 200-yard medley relay team (Tim Lally, Greg Harnden, Russ Hoffman, Paul Dark) with a time of 2:42.2 breaking the old record of 3:15 seconds.

Co-captain Ron Yitlalo's time of 3:10.5 in the 400-yard freestyle also set a new record. Tim Lally cut 1.7 seconds off the backstroke record, clocking in at 1:21.1.

Yitlalo also placed first in the 200-yard freestyle, followed by teammate Mike Penskar, who also came in behind Yitlalo in the other freestyle event. The 100-yard freestyle ended with Trojan Paul Dark first and Irving Schiffman third.

Russ Hoffman led all in the butterfly event with Ken Bayless finishing third. Placing two-three in diving were Rick Fredricks and Frank Dark.

Senior Greg Harnden came out on top in the breaststroke and Charley Weber was third.

THE WRESTLING had no trouble disposing of South Lyons, 30-14, ending their record for the past two seasons, 26-2.

Carl Watkins at 135 and Steve Clark at 145 scored pins while (103) Bryan Levy 4-1, (112) Don Yitlalo 14-0, (120) Wayne Bailey 4-3, Ray Wehner (127) 12-2, and Dennis Russo at 165 8-5 all gained decisions.

The basketball team gained their first two victories by trouncing Brighton, 75-62, with two players scoring over 20 points.

The first quarter ended with the Trojans in a tie, but the Trojans left the floor at halftime with slight 34-32 lead. This lead was increased in the third period by four points, and the sharp shooting on the part of John Thompson and Mark Diendorf put the Trojans on top for keeps.

Area GOP Fight Prelude To '68

Last weekend's victory of the Romney moderates over the conservatives for control of the 19th District — Oakland organization was only a prelude to what's likely to be even a bigger fight in 1968.

The moderate group, headed by John Cartwright of West Bloomfield and supported by many Farmington Republicans, won a credentials fight at the GOP State Convention in Detroit. It therefore got seated, took control of the formal organization and won the district's representation on the GOP State Central Committee.

In this group were such Farmington GOP notables as Tom McMilland, head of the township party organization; Mrs. Isabel Haynes, a State Central Committee member; and Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

BUT THE CONSERVATIVE group, headed by Christian Powell and master-minded by 1966 congressional candidate Richard Kuhn, has vowed to keep its organization intact — and it has good reason for wanting to do so.

First, the same group of local delegates will meet again early in 1968. Second, the stakes will be much higher: The group which can elect its people to the state convention will be in a position to pick two Michigan delegates to the 1968 Republican National Convention.

Gov. Romney and State Chairman Elly Peterson are anxious to have the Cartwright group retain control.

As presidential timber, Romney would be embarrassed if the 19th District picked two delegates opposed to him. Already, the 14th District, controlled by Richard Duran's forces, and the 12th District are likely to oppose him. A presidential candidate who has strong opposition in his home delegation looks bad to other states.

A number of the conservative group were elected on the moderate slate, too. One of them was Powell. But most of them, including Powell, failed to take their seats on the State Convention floor, and Cartwright's forces filled their vacancies.

Moreover, the ousted Powell forces failed to turn over the organization's properties and records, according to a Wayne Circuit suit filed by Cartwright and scheduled for a hearing late in the week.

There it is: An ideological moderate also tends to do a moderate amount of work and political maneuvering.

In the next year, then, precinct delegates who haven't been regular in their attendance at party functions may expect to be wooed hard by both sides. Ultimately, only two national convention votes will be at stake — but they're from George Romney's home county, and he can't afford to lose them.

More Facts On Monument Size Asked

Farmington Township Board declined to come up with a site for the proposed new veteran's monument (Monday night) until it had further information on the type of structure and proposed cost.

This followed a request by the committee to move and refurbish the monument and for the Township Planning Commission to come up with a proposed site. The City of Farmington has offered a site in the small city park just west of Powell could not be reached for comment. A young voice answering the telephone at his home said he left for Mexico and will be back March 9.

HOW WILL the two groups try to win control in 1968?

The answer will come at informal caucuses of elected precinct delegates and party workers. These groups meet by State House of Representative Districts, of which there are five (60th through 64th) in the 19th Congressional District portion of Oakland County.

These caucuses do most of the work of picking state convention delegates. The system is 10 or 15 years old, Cartwright said. Despite the chance of their being "packed," Cartwright said the system would likely be continued.

After the caucuses will come the district convention. It's likely to be different from the one of Jan. 31, where Romney moderates failed to challenge what they later claimed were irregularities in many procedures. The conservatives, too, will likely brush up on their Robert's Rules of Order.

The credentials committee at last week's state convention voted 13-4 to seat the moderate delegation, on the ground that Powell had been hasty and improper in adjourning the Jan. 31 district convention. At the same time, several credentials committee members roundly criticized the moderates for their parliamentary vacillation and sloppiness. Neither side emerged smiling like a rose.

HOW DID the conservatives — who scored in all polls are numerically a tiny portion of the American population — manage to put up such a fight in the 19th District?

"You'll remember the weather was bad at the 'district convention,'" Cartwright said. "Our people are moderate in their beliefs, and they don't have to have this strong will that motivates the conservatives to attend convention in bad weather."
