is concerned with the western nations of the world, through the show of strength displayed by the NATO alliance. The aspect of foreign policy of which I am most critical is the very basis of the administration's foreign policy. There is an apparent lack of direction."
DEMOCRAT

 Billie S. Farnum, 50; Pontiac; Vassar High School, Vassar, Michigan. United States Representative to Congress, two years House Committee on Appropriations, two years Appropriations sub-committee on Labor, Health, Education, Welfare, and related agencies. economic assistance, people-to-people programs like the Peace Corps, "good neighbor" diplomacy and—if we must—by opposing those hostile to self-determination. I strongly hope we will strengthen our foreign policy—to solve problems peacefully before they must be salvaged militarily, to use all our resources to work with those who seek to help themselves. While we cannot find peace alone, the success of our quest is bounded only by the justness of our cause."

 Questions Asked Candidates
 1—What State services should be expanded and/or reduced? Why?

REPUBLICAN

 N. Lorraine Boe, 58; Dearborn; B.S. Western State University; M.S. — Wayne State, Clinical Psychology; Work toward Ph.D. in Guidance and Counseling; Advanced studies in Higher Education; Teacher in Dearborn Schools — 10 years; Women's Recreation — 10 years; 2 years — 2 years; Member of National Research Committee, Needs of Youth; State Convention Chairman, State Federation of Kalamazoo, 1966.
 1—"State support of education and mental health must be substantially expanded to meet obvious needs. The state's inability thus far to meet fully its obligations stems from inadequate state revenues. Inadequacy of revenue is a problem because of the enormous revenues siphoned off of Michigan by the Federal government."
 2—"Michigan has to rely for revenue primarily on some form of sales and use tax and on the property tax. The most equitable and effective way for Michigan and other states to meet the mounting costs of state services is to pass the Federal government for a rebate of a portion of the income tax."

year resident of district, Sec-Treas. Michigan Council of Medical costs; Chairman, Detroit Council of Men's Labor-Management Comm. Panel arbitrator, Michigan State Mediation Board; Past Commander American Legion Post 375.
 1—"State assistance, with Federal help, to control water and air pollution, must be immediate, otherwise the cost to future generations will be more staggering than today's. A thorough study must be made of the feasibility of restructuring the State legislature to a one-house legislature, such as Nebraska has had since 1937, and several of the Canadian Provinces. Two houses means each voter is represented twice, a redundancy, a loss of efficiency."
 2—"Taxation must be redistributed to provide not only equal taxation, but equal benefits from taxation. A uniform statewide tax, on property or income, for school purposes, to be distributed on a student population basis would provide such equality. Tax on business activities must be eliminated, and tax incentive must be given new industries and research facilities to attract them to the state, and to provide employment for the graduates of our schools and colleges."
