

Evans Shows Big Gains

PORTLAND, ORE.—Evans Products Company announced Monday that sales and earnings for the first nine months of 1966 were $214,391,000 and $5,773,000 respectively in contrast to sales of $177,953,000 and earnings of $3,653,000 for the same period of 1965.

Earnings were less than expected primarily because of startup expenses and manpower problems at the Plymouth, Mich. radiator and equipment manufacturing plant. Corrective action is being taken at the Plymouth plant and its performance should improve markedly.

With the present high order backlog and with profitable operations at the Blue Island, Ill. and Washington, Indiana radiator plants, Evans expects earnings to make a substantial contribution to earnings in 1967.

In the aggregate, sales and earnings in the other operations of the company continue at levels above those of last year. The United States Railway Equipment Company Division has benefited by the expansion of its railroad building, rebuilding and leasing activities. Sales and earnings of the Plymouth Division are continuing at high levels.

The Cape-Homes Division has performed at substantially higher levels than were forecast for this year, setting new records for sales and earnings. However, certain operations in the Building Materials Division and Moore's Super Stores Division have been adversely affected by the slowdown in home-building.

Construction of the Fiber Products Division's particle board plant at Silsbee, Texas and the Plywall Division's panel printing and prefinishing facility at Chesapeake, Va. is proceeding and production is scheduled for early 1967.

THE FAMED 16-MAN "fight-cheer brass band" from the University of Michigan's marching band will highlight the halftime program at Plymouth High Friday when the Rocks close their 1966 season. Directed by Leroy Lane, a former member of the PHS band, the 6-man group will demonstrate its colorful maneuvers and music. The students are all music majors and members of the symphonic band in addition to the marching organization. The group includes: (front, from left) Ed Zendera, Jim Burson, Edie Rupp, John Crick, Don Crooz and H. H. Hansen (second row, from left) John Kitzman, Joe Duchi, Eldred Baird, Nick Lutz, Stan Szamko and Art Jennings; (rear with tubas, from left) Walter Zechlin and James Skala. That's Lane doing the directing.

Famed U-M Musicians Perform

One of the most interesting closing game programs ever presented at Plymouth High is on tap Friday when the PHS ring down the curtain on their 1966 football activities against the powerful Walled Lake grid machine. But at the same time, Band Director James Griffith has made arrangements for the 16-man "fight-cheer brass band" from the University of Michigan to perform during the halftime show. The group is directed by Leroy Lane, a former Plymouth High bandsman and it has delighted U-M home game crowds with its special arrangements of swinging fight cheers. The 16-man unit will highlight the halftime show and then will be feted at a reception in the school cafeteria following the game. Members of the PHS band, parents and friends of the visiting group are invited to attend. The pre-game ceremonies will be highlighted by the presentation of an American flag by Gene Leader, Americanism chairman of VFW Mayflower Post 6035, and the state's championship color guard unit under the direction of Harold Young. Leader has planned to have Congressman Wes Vivian participate in the presentation since the flag is one that has flown over the Capitol but had to cancel that portion of the program due to objections by the Republican Party that it would involve politics and that Vivian's opponent, Marvin Esch, should have equal time.

Book Tells of Controls For Insects

A new publication of interest to both city and rural people with ornamental shrubs and trees is "Insects Affecting Woody Ornamental Shrubs and Trees."

Don Juchartz, Wayne County Extension Agricultural Agent, says the new Extension Service publications is available at a 25 cent charge.

The 49-page publication has illustrations showing the different kinds of insects and damage they cause and will help the gardener determine the type of dust or spray to use to control the insects. The publication (Extension bulletin No. 530) was prepared by William E. Wallner, Extension specialist in the MSU department of entomology. Orders should be sent direct to the Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

Bright Hues For Him

The blazer set off a whole splash of color in men's wear. If a man wears a solid color sports jacket, why shouldn't he bring pattern to the other half of his outfit, his slacks? Gentlemen's Quarterly reports that the campus set and others now are wearing patterned slacks. These are seen in blanket plaids and tartans, neat glen plaids and houndstooth checks.

Autumn is the time for football, cider and apples. Something else crops up each year at this time though. Actually I had forgotten all about it until a fellow worker sailed into the office one day and asked for help.

It seems as though a scavenger hunt was planned and I had to compile a list of items for the participants. Everybody put their heads together and soon a total of 20 items were listed. The poor homeowners have our sympathy when the members of this hunt descend. However, before telling you just what the participants must find, allow me to reminisce for a moment.

A scavenger hunt is best when the night is crisp and cold. After all one can't race around a neighborhood madly if it's warm. It also helps if there is a full moon. This light cuts down on the incidence of injury. Somehow I was never so lucky. On the night of our hunt it always seemed to be raining. Once the hunt was conducted during a Aetna storm.

One night we were instructed to find, among other things, a round paper clip. I didn't think such things existed. I have since learned that they do, but how many private homes keep a supply of round paper clips among their possessions?

For more than two hours, five of us knocked on every door in about a square mile radius seeking this one last item.

The reaction ranged from amusement to irritation — it seems that other members of the hunt had been through the neighborhood before. It was all in vain, however, as no round paper clip was to be found.

One consolation, however, no other group found a round paper clip either.

Naturally with this kind of an experience behind me I suggested a round paper clip. The gal in charge wouldn't put it on the list. She thought that was just a little too much. Somehow knowing the resourcefulness of today's teenagers I think that all of the groups would have found one or manufactured one.

However, this list for the hunt should keep them busy. The items that the teenagers have to collect in a two-hour time span are: a corset stay; a used typewriter ribbon; a burned out Christmas tree light; a lighter flint; a half of an empty egg shell; old toothbrush; a 1965 calendar; a baby bottle nipple; one pine cone; a broken rubberband; an old bed sheet; a month-old newspaper; a coffee or jumping bean; a nearly empty toilet paper roll; a store sales slip; a football player cap from a coke bottle; two wooden kitchen matches; a bar of small guest soap; one used dress pattern; and the participant's baby picture taken before the age of one year.

One last point — by the time this is published the hunt will be over so we are not warning either homeowners or the participants of anything before the fact. And after the fact a warning would do no good.

Natural Finish Easier to Clean

Women like natural woodwork in the home because it's easy to care for. Fingermarks, for instance, don't show as they do on painted surfaces.

Care and cleaning of fine softwood moldings, door and window casings, cabinetwork and paneling are much the same as for furniture. Regular dusting and an occasional buffing with a soft cloth will keep natural finished woodwork in tip-top condition.
