

Martin Heisses Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Fifty years ago, on Nov. 4, at the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Martha and Martin Heiss spoke their wedding vows.

Friday, Nov. 4, 30 years later, they celebrated their golden wedding at the Thunderbird Inn in Plymouth.

All five of their children were present and the party was a joint hosting effort. Their children and spouses were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Poppeny, of Farmington; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Heiss, Jr., of Livonia; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heiss, of Youngstown, O.; and Dale Heiss, of Coldwater were not able to be in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Heiss, Jr., of Livonia hosted a pre-cocktail party at their home. The years have been busy and full for the Martin Heiss family since they began their married life in Detroit 50 years ago.

IN A FESTIVE MOOD, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Heiss celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary at the Thunderbird Inn.

Miss "Sugar 'N Spice" Enjoys Trip to Coast

Cathy Gee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Gee, 14188 Henry Road, Livonia, has returned from a trip to San Francisco with her mother.

Cathy, winner of Montgomery Ward's "Sugar and Spice Contest," left for the coast on Oct. 28 on her first continental flight. After a brief stop at Los Angeles, she arrived in San Francisco in time for lunch at Fisherman's Wharf.

While there they toured Chinatown. They visited a fortune cookie factory, and had dinner on the Sheraton Palace.

A view of the famed California redwoods, a trip around San Francisco Bay, and a look at Alcatraz Prison from the cruise ship were a few more of the spots they viewed.

Cathy was most impressed with the Golden Gate Bridge, and the trolley cars, and the sight of people slanted forward as they climbed or walked up streets and sidewalks in hills in San Francisco.

When Mrs. Gee and Cathy were guests at the play "The Fantasticks" they were invited by the cast to visit backstage and attend a party.

As a fitting climax, when they were airborne on Halloween evening, the hostess masqueraded as a witch and passed out favors for all aboard.

Fold immediately. To have time, fold launched diapers to size as you take them from the line or dryer—conveniently ready for baby to wear.

"GETTING TO KNOW YOU," is the theme of this group these days and it would seem to be a pleasant pastime. The Farmington families and their foreign guests (kneeling), Kenneth Ross Smith, are left to right: Mr. and Mrs. James

Snow, Hot Dogs Win Favor With Exchange Students

Three Foreign Exchange Students were formally introduced to Farmington, Sunday, Nov. 6 although they have been part of the community for quite a few months.

The North Farmington Chapter of the American Field Service and the South Farmington Chapter combined forces to sponsor a formal reception at the South Farmington High School.

We had a chance to chat with the students and found their reactions to our country varied, although favorable.

To Hue Phan, a tiny girl from Viet Nam is staying with Mr. and Mrs. James Atchison, Macomb Avenue. She loves American food. "What do you like best?" we queried. "Ooh I love the hot dog and hamburger," she said, wrinkling up her nose.

She also loves to have her picture taken. "Where is the color?" she asked us. "This is black and white." We explained to her that color doesn't reproduce in the paper.

To Hue Phan is 18 and is studying to be a dentist. "Would you like to live here?" we asked. "Yes," she said emphatically. To Hue Phan wore a turquoise chemise and flitted about among the guests like a hummingbird.

Bjorn Ternstrom, 17, from Sweden and the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Reber, of Farmington, was surprised that it was that he liked about our country. "I like the people," he said nothing else.

They are all so friendly," he said, "I would like to be a doctor."

Kenneth Ross Smith is from Australia and is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Huber, of Lorikay. His last week has been an adjustment for him. Ross made his first touchdown in the football team. Also Ross has his first snow.

When we asked him what he liked he spoke straight to the point. "I like everything," he said. "Everything about the United States. I will major in Science."

It would appear that we have a budding bunch of good will ambassadors in the three exchange students in Farmington this year.

Cloister Nuns Handwork To Be at Christmas Bazaar

The needlework of the nuns is famous the world over. It has been so ever since Medieval times when princesses used to board their dresses were made by the nuns in the convent walls.

It gave rise to the old fairy tale of the wedding dress so fine it could be drawn through a ring and seemed as if woven of spider webs. Anyone who has ever received a gift from them knows the tiny stitches that characterize their work.

On Nov. 26 the Cloister nuns in the Monastery of the Blessed Sacrament at 13 Mile and Middlebelt in Farmington will open their Guild Room for a Christmas Bazaar which will feature all their handmade articles.

Not only the nuns from this cloister but from all over the world will have their talented creations on sale. Phillippine nuns will have

Teen Dance To Be Held

Beta Sigma Phi's Plymouth chapter's Service group under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alla Olson, 333 Evergreen, Plymouth, is holding another of its successful teen dance parties on Thursday evening, Nov. 10, at the Plymouth State Home.

"The Avengers" are giving the chapter their services for that night with lots of lively music to which the teens at the Plymouth State Home have proved their rhythm could match that of any of our young people of today. "The Avengers" are boys in their teens from Livonia. They are Mike Bradburn, George Dalgio, Joe Petrucci, Greg Houston, and Chuck Phillips.
