

Moldings Adorn Garage Portals

Garage doors are experiencing a trend to greater decoration, notes a major manufacturer, the Overhead Door Corp. This varies from region to region, however. Decoration is being done mostly with wood moldings, but some favorites favor effects achieved with pine lattice panels.

Ninety percent of the panel doors built in Overhead's ten factories are made of western hemlock lumber. Sectional doors, which are divided horizontally, are gradually fading over from the open-piece "shindubler" among roll-down types, it was reported.

TELLER MARIE LANGLEY (right) turns the combination on a small safe deposit bank while tiny Stacey Miller places a penny in the slot. That's her mother, Mrs. Elaine Miller, looking on. It all took place Friday when the newest branch of the First Federal Savings and Loan opened its doors on Middlebelt near W. Seven Mile Road.

Get Tools Ready For Yard Work

While cold weather keeps your tools, prepare your tools for spring, even if they did clean and oil them last fall.

An emery wheel or whetstone, available in most hardware stores, will sharpen your hoe. Polish the cutting edges. Smooth off burrs and make a clean, beveled edge on the inner side, (facing you as you hold it) instead of on both sides. On shovels and axes, sharpen the side away from you.

If you bent your fork tines by prying too hard on a rock or tree root, a length of pipe slipped over it will give leverage needed to get it back in line.

Forks, made of tough steel, will not bend easily. Don't heat tines or you'll spoil the temper and leave them soft.

Replace any cracked or broken tool handles. If your local garden center can't supply the center, write to a manufacturer, supplying dimensions.

Our tool friend advises that in replacing a handle, drill or punch out the nail pinning the tool to the handle.

With axes and forks, hold them with the tines down and hammer on alternate sides of the ferrule until the head is disengaged.

Install the new handle and drive the nail through the hole in the shank and into the rake held to hold in firmly.

In hoes, disengage by striking the back of the curved neck. The handle of a shovel used for a long time may break off in the metal socket. Rather than try to pry out all the remains, drill a small hole in it, screw in a heavy lag screw or carriage bolt. Fasten the head in a vise and knock off the blade, with a hammer. Then attach the handle.

Know Fescues Before Buying Grass Seeds

When seeding your lawn this spring, don't confuse your fescues.

Some make attractive, fine-leaved lawns; others look more like tough, hairy clumps suitable for roadsides, but not for front lawns.

C. M. Harrison, Michigan State University crop scientist, points out that the preferred fescues are members of the "creeping r" species. Any one of its improved varieties is a worthy ingredient in a lawn seed mixture.

Harrison says the varieties to look for include "Chewings," "Hilsha," "Pennlaw" and "Rainier." All are excellent companions for Kentucky bluegrass, he says, and are noted for persistence on poor, droughty or shaded areas.

But the MSU crop scientist warns home owners to be "lucky-31" which are, not suitable for attractive lawns.
