PROVIDING FOR THE FUTURE

Philadelphia Hotel Proprietor Prepares for Time When Flying Machines Will Be Common.

You can fly directly to one of the most prominent Philadelphia hotels and land on the elegantly equipped aeroplane landing which is now in process of construction, and expected to be finished shortly. Though probably by the time you get your aeroplane such landings will be established all over the country. For if this one is a success the proprietor is going to erect a series of similar ones in different cities.

The landing of the plane is large and adequate, being about 100 feet long by 50 feet wide. And there are to be a series of buffers with sand bags attached to break the momentum of the machine. There will also be a trap to catch the aeroplanes and prevent them from falling off the roof.

So far, however, nothing has been said as to whether the pilot of the top floor rooms in the hotel will take a tumble owing to the quite natural disturbances which may result from the landing of the noisy machines directly over one's head.

PERILS OF THE BYSTANDER.

Novel legal decisions? Oh, yes, they're still being made—no end to 'em, in fact. Why, just the other day two women appeared before a Chicago judge laying claim to a bulldog. The judge was kind-hearted. He didn't want to give each woman half of the dog, having some consideration, you see, for the feelings of the dog. So he gave the entire animal to a third woman, who was merely an innocent bystander! This in-stance serves to emphasize the extreme peril in which the innocent bystander always stands. Yet others will persist in playing the I. B. role.

NEW ENGLAND HUMOR.

A New England farmer had lost his cow; he enlisted the sympathy and co-operation of a brother farmer and together they set out to find her. A little way down the road they came to a sign, "Sixty Miles to Manchester." A mile or so farther on they were confronted by another guide post, "Ninety Miles to Winchester."

"Well," said the owner of the cow, "if the man chased her sixty miles and the wind chased her ninety, whar is she?"

GOT HER NUMBER.

"She's an odd woman."
"I hadn't noticed." In what way?
"She's his third wife."

George W. Gillis

Farmington people will deeply sympathize with Miss Ruth Gillis, who is absent from her accustomed post in the Enterprise office, on account of the death of her father.

Without a moment's warning he was stricken with apoplexy while engaged in hanging a door, and fell to the floor, passing away without a word. The body was taken to his old home in Morenci for burial.

No man was ever held in higher esteem in the community in which he lived than was George W. Gillis and his death is deeply regretted. His genial disposition endeared him to all with whom he came in contact and his friends were numbered by his acquaintances.

HIS BAD BREAK.

"You haven't got J. Jones Jenkins writing advertisements for you any more, I hear," remarked one business man to another, both good advertisers along different lines.

"No," replied the other in a tone of strong disapproval, "and I'm glad of it."

"What's wrong with him? I understand he had taken a course from a correspondence school and was thoroughly competent."

"Was he?" And the other man spat as though something tasted bad. Was he? Well, let me tell what he done. I had a new brand of toothbrushes and I wanted something extra to exploit them all over, and I told him to do it. Next day in all the papers it showed up large and luminous, and at the bottom there was a line standing out clear which read: 'If not satisfactory after a week's trial, return and get your money back.' Now, what do you think of that? Toothbrushes, mind you!"—Magazine of Fun.
