Success Belongs To People

The good and positive events often go unnoticed. Thus it seems especially important this week to take a proud look at the biggest event of the past week in Farmington. It was the Third Annual Farmington Founders Festival.

This year's Festival promised to be the biggest to date in the pre-planning. Enthusiasm and interest were running high; a complete and varied schedule of events and concessions were slated throughout the area; and all systems were set to go.

Then hard luck struck in the Detroit riots and the forced postponement of the Festival.

It was scheduled for a weekend, then the Festival committee discovered that this conflicted with the Michigan State Fair. The Festival was rescheduled again. Last week the Festival was staged.

Rain and overcast skies plagued the committee all three days. Added to this was the fear that with the postponement the interest had died.

The people were still interested though as proved by their attendance. Even the rain didn't keep them away.

"We agree with the sentiments of one of the original Festival promoters that "the Festival is here to stay."

We're delighted with the response and with the interest shown by the residents. The people who make the Festival are not the businessmen nor are they the governmental leaders. Certainly these people work hard at planning and promoting the Festival, but they don't make it a success. The credit for the success goes to the leverage Joe Resident. He's the guy who lives in Farmington; pays his taxes, votes in the elections, tries to keep abreast of the local issues, and who generally spends his weekends working with the scout troops, on his garden or his lawn, or socializing with the other Joe Residents who live on the same street.

In other words, the success belongs to you — the residents!

It is because of you that Farmington has developed the spirit it has.

It is because of you the businessmen and governmental leaders are willing to roll up their sleeves and devote many hours of hard work to make Farmington the pleasant spot it is.

For these and many other reasons we tip our hats, and say thanks.

Candidate Denies Jaycee Slate

EDITOR:
Your article concerning Jaycees and their involvement in politics as viewed by yourself identified with the Jaycees. Did you realize that there are five of us in the Exchange Club and I believe live in the Board of Commerce.

Yes, two of us are Jaycees and a third exhausted three years ago but that does not give us a slate or mean that the Jaycees are involved in politics. While the three of us have many common thoughts on the future of Farmington Township, we also disagree on certain issues.

The Farmington Jaycees are not a party to our candidacy and would be doing ourselves and the community a disservice by referring to us as a Jaycee slate.

There was a time in Farmington when The Enterprise did not criticize enthusiasm when related to community service but rather spoke out against zeal and encouraged citizen participation.

When you say Jaycees are enthusiastic you are absolutely right. Our motto is very simple, "Leadership training through community development!" Our Club does not appeal to talkers but to doers.

There is no place for apathy in the Jaycees when something is needed in the community whether it be a bigger Easter Egg Hunt or Pools and Auditoriums.

CHARLES H. WILLIAMS
President Farmington Jaycees
Candidate For Charter Commission

EDITOR'S NOTE: The editor absolutely never stated that there was a Jaycee slate running for charter commission, and we would expect that there would be differences of opinion among the Jaycees just as any other group.

The fact remains, however, that while many candidates for charter commission are members of other groups, they are not most often identified with these groups.

In addition, while one of the "prominent Jaycees" is now "exhausted" he still stands to be identified with the group. Township Attorney Joseph T. Brennan, who filed for charter commission, is also an ex-Jaycee. He is not, however, identified with the group.

Far from criticizing the action of the Jaycees the editorial called them a "wholesome influence." Does this sound like criticism?

THANKS

EDITOR:
The 1967 Farmington Founders Festival is history. We would like to thank all of the hundreds of people who took part in this affair.

We would specifically like to thank the various committee chairmen who did such an unselfish job: Executive Committee, William Bowman, Russ Gilbert, Jack Cotton, and Mrs. Barbara Bays. Promoted, Edward Balden and Finance, John Chapman, Special Events, Harold Larson, and Ned Ogden.

Miss Founders' Festival, Terry Frisco, Teen Activities, Fred Friedl, Concessions, Omar Sanderson, Parade, Bud Reame, and Diplomates, Delois Hamilton.

We are sure that both the community and individuals within the community have greater civic pride because of this event.

We would like to express our thanks to all those who participated in the 1967 Farmington Founders Festival.

Many Helped

EDITOR:
The credit for the success of the Community Health Program sponsored by the Farmington Jaycee Auxiliary during the Farmington's Founders Festival goes to many people such as:

The many volunteers (including those great teens) without whose help the entire project would have been difficult to conduct.

Dr. E. Blumberg who put us in touch with the Lab Techni-ans—Shirley Green, Dave Youngblood and Lee Smith—who volunteered their time so the diabetic could operate. Himmelspach, Detroit Edison, Town and Country Dodge, the Board of Commerce, and The Farmington Enterprise & Observer.

And, of course, the many agencies that cooperated with our Auxiliary to provide the extensive screening services. A special word of thanks to the many people who patiently waited through minor problems—Michigan State Health Department travel difficulties from Lansing, X-ray Unit maintenance problems, and that unpredictable weather!

During the three days, we were able to provide screening health tests for more than 1,500 people! We feel that reaching this many residents certainly justified the efforts involved in coordinating a project of this scope.

RICHARD RUTTER

Rutter Stresses Role Of Teacher

Parents who may have doubts about mechanical devices soley, perhaps, supplanting classroom teachers can take comfort from Richard Rutter's thoughts on the subject.

The new principal of Beechview Elementary School says, "THE TEACHER himself is the most important aspect in any classroom situation. The teacher has to be there to interpret and direct the individual educational needs of each child. The aids only serve to help the teacher be more effective in her job."

Born in Grand Haven, Rutter holds a B.A. from Western Michigan University, an M.A. from Michigan State and is now working on his educational specialist degree at Eastern Michigan.

He taught fourth grade last year at Larkshire, taught sixth grade for a year in Bloomingdale, Mich., and knows Beechview well because he taught sixth grade there for three years.

HE WILL DIRECT 532 children at Beechview this year, two Type B classrooms for handicapped children and 18 regular classroom teachers.

"I would hope," he says, "that each child would have the opportunity to grow at the rate at which he is capable. I would also hope that when the child leaves here that he is a well-rounded person in-telleciually, emotionally and physically."

TO ACCOMPLISH this, Rutter is well aware that his teachers and their training are the ones who will be most responsible.

One thing that impresses him about the Farmington School District is the "freedom given teachers to develop their own educational formalis."

He is enthusiastic about the techniques of Farmington's school system. "These are," he says:

"Self-contained classrooms with various services—physical education, art, music, speech correction, libraries and even the cafeteria, which might be called a learning situation.

"Each teacher having the flexibility to develop an individual program within the class and within the guidelines set up within Farmington elementary program.

"Each teacher given the freedom to use various techniques within her class which make the class unique."

THE NEW PRINCIPAL plans to work closely with the 1,000 assorted parents with whom his new job will bring him in contact.

He states his philosophy of parental cooperation simply, "I feel the home and school together (and the home comes first) have the responsibility of educating, guiding and directing our youth."
