Plymouth Opens Symphony Year

Violinist Mischa Mischakoff will perform Beethoven's D major violin concerto with the Plymouth Symphony as the orchestra opens its 1967-68 season this weekend.

The free concert will begin Sunday at 4 p.m. in Plymouth High School.

Mischakoff, concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony, is scheduled to retire at the end of the season.

FLEETING HIS native Russia in 1921, Mischakoff and a friend proved to officials in a Polish police fortress they weren't Bolshevik spies by performing Handel's passacaglia for unaccompanied violin and viola.

The police chief, a serious music lover, was convinced. Although Mischakoff was honored as a student in St. Petersburg Conservatory and is a fine soloist, he chose instead to make his career as an orchestra concertmaster.

For 15 years he was known as "Toscanini's third hand" with the NBC Symphony. He has also been concertmaster of the New York Symphony, Chicago Symphony and Philadelphia Orchestra.

WITH THE PLYMOUTH Symphony Sunday, Mischakoff will perform the only violin concerto Beethoven, a pianist by background, ever wrote.

The Beethoven work ranks with those of Mendelssohn, Brahms and Tchaikovsky as the four most popular concert works for violin and orchestra.

Early critics sarcastically called it a concerto for violin and kettle drums—the first movement's theme is announced by a four-dots-and-a-dash beat of the timpani. The catchy, final movement, a rondo, is in the style of a rustic dance.

Opening the program, the orchestra, directed by Wayne Daniel, will perform Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphoses of Themes by Carl Maria von Weber" and Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G Major."
