

Schoolcraft To Host Manpower Seminar

Area educators, industrialists and public officials will participate in a report seminar on Michigan's manpower and technician needs for the present and future at Schoolcraft College on Wednesday, Nov. 1.

Designed for persons concerned with industrial development, labor, education and community development, the seminar is one of 20 scheduled at colleges throughout the state during October and November, according to J. P. Adams, Schoolcraft College Dean of Technical-Vocational Instruction, who is coordinating the Schoolcraft meeting.

THE SEMINAR is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. in the amphitheater in the Forum. The meeting is made possible by a grant from the Michigan Dept. of Commerce. Other cooperating agencies are the Michigan Dept. of Education and the Michigan Dept. of Labor. Ferris State College is administering the series. Information to be discussed at the session is from two recent studies, Adams said. The Michigan Manpower Study; "An Analysis of the Characteristics of Michigan's Labor Force in the Next 15 Years," was conducted by the Battelle Memorial Institute. Ferris State College made the other study: "The Michigan Technician Need."

The Ferris study was on the present and projected demand for technically trained people and their training opportunities. It was directed by James D. Kelly of the college's department of administrative studies.

Purpose of the seminars is to present and discuss alternate courses of action regarding policy decisions that should be considered by the Dept. of Education and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

IN ADDITION to Kelly, speakers at the Schoolcraft session will include Leonard Bronder of the Office of Economic Expansion; Norman Barcus of the MESC; and Phil Bailey or Robert Pangman of the vocational education division of the Dept. of Education.

The agenda will include a report on the Michigan manpower study and the manpower development economy; a report on the technician needs study, the findings and implications; challenges of the manpower studies to education; and a summary planning for the future.

A forum discussion by participants will follow the reports, Adams said.

Post Office Details Yule Mailing Dates

Only 68 days. That's right count 'em. . . only 68 days to Christmas.

The post office has opened its annual campaign for early mailing and noting that overseas packages have to be mailed soon in order to reach their destination by Christmas.

IN FACT, if you want to send something to a civilian in the Far East you are already too late. The deadline for those mailings—to ensure delivery was Oct. 15.

To other areas of the world, however, packages mailed to civilians by Nov. 1 have a possibility of arriving before the man from the North Pole makes his rounds.

Christmas packages to members of the Armed Forces overseas have the following schedule:

Surface mail—Oct. 16 to Nov. 11. Space Available (SAS), five pound weight limit, 60 inches in length & girth for size, Oct. 21 to Dec. 1; and airmail—Dec. 1 to Dec. 11.

When Uncle Sam uses the term "Armed Forces Overseas" he means personnel of the Armed Forces, members of their families, and U.S. civilians employed overseas who receive mail through an APO or FPO in New York, San Francisco or Seattle.

Remember to use the complete and correct APO or FPO numbers on all this mail.

THAT TAKES care of the people across the seas, but what about your aunt living in California? The post office says that parcels for distant states must be mailed by Dec. 4. If your aunt lives in Flint you have until Dec. 13 as that's the deadline for local and nearby delivery.

If your aunt joined the 49ers expedition to Alaska or settled for the warmer climate of Hawaii, however, you have a different deadline.

Surface mail must be in the hands of the post office by Nov. 29, while airmail packages must be mailed by Dec. 14, for these states.

REMEMBER THAT this year the proper address and the zip code must be included on all parcels.

The postal system computes the rates on the basis of the zip code and it will save time and aggravation to have the zip code on the package before arriving at the post office.

The complete address and zip code will speed the delivery of all mail and should be used. The postal department distributed forms last month to help you obtain needed zip codes. Use these so that you will have all the information necessary.

This year the postal department has a suggestion which will help it deliver packages which lose their wrappings. If you place a paper inside the parcel post covering containing both the address and the return address, the parcel can be delivered in the event the cover has been torn or removed.

Damage to the outer wrapper is the principal cause of delay to Christmas parcels, according to the post office. Place the address on one side of the outer wrapper.

Farmington Postmaster Henry L. Trombley noted that: "With the record breaking volume of more than nine billion pieces of holiday mail expected this year, the public must shop early, mail early and use the Zip Code on all mail so that delivery of holiday mail can be completed on time."

"Use your holiday mail to arrive after Christmas," Trombley observed.

New Schoolcraft Senate Representatives Sketched

Seven representatives of the freshman class were elected to one-year terms on the Schoolcraft College Student Senate this month. The seven, who took office Oct. 4, join eight sophomores, elected last spring.

Who are the new student leaders? Where do they come from? What do they want to accomplish?

Here are thumbnail sketches: JULIE COLLINS, 18, graduated from Plymouth High and lives at 1641 Old Salem Road. Her field is secondary education, although she would really like to land a government job. Concentrating in history and political science, she plans to transfer to Western Michigan. "More student participation" is her aim and she says that means not only increasing the chances for students to make decisions in the college, but also fighting apathy.

SANDY MURNIGHAN, 19, lives in Livonia at 14215 Beatrice. A graduate of North Farmington High, her interest is in speech and she hopes to transfer to Michigan State for her last two years.

She ran because she's interested in people, wants to have something to say about what happens at the college. TED PFEIFFER, 19, was one member of a Student Voice ticket, which advocated equal representation for students on college boards and "generally more of a voice for students." Pfeiffer comes from Detroit and is a business administration major. He plans to transfer, probably to Wayne.

EARL MENARY, who led the slate in number of votes, lives at 36906 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia. He's a history major, planning to transfer to Michigan State.

Earl was the other Student Voice candidate. In addition to more representation, the Voice ticket backed candidate Gary Greening in his push for cigarette machines on campus.

GARY GREENING, 19, would like cigarette machines for students, one of the few specific proposals to come out of a cool election campaign. He also believes that students should generally take a more active part in campus life, and be able to fight for the changes they would like to see.

He lives in Livonia at 35928 Parkdale and graduated from Franklin. A business administration student, he hopes to transfer to Eastern Michigan, perhaps to train as an accountant.

GREG PAWLOWSKI, 19, is from Detroit. A political science student, he plans on a teaching career. More enthusiasm, more pride in the college, more interest among students are his aims. Of student government he says: "Here we can really do something."

TOM NEDADU, 18, of 11320 Arden, Livonia, graduated from Franklin High last year. Tom would like to be a dramatics teacher after completing work at Eastern Michigan. Specifically, he will try for longer library hours. Generally, he aims for more student participation in campus government.

CHRISTMAS ARRIVES early for orphans from the Sarah Fisher Home. The management of the new Arian's store, corner of Inkster and Plymouth Roads, staged a preview for the orphans and gave each $5 for shopping. This youngster appears happy even though he probably is too young to realize that $5 will buy a lot for a toy-seeking boy.

WHAT MORE can a happy youngster want than a big balloon and a new toy tiger. This lot was one of the orphans receiving an early Christmas at the grand opening of the Arian's store.
