

Couple Is Married In St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg Episcopal Church in St. Petersburg, Fla., was the scene of the recent wedding of Nancy Elizabeth Wright and Thomas Bryce Thomas.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Claude Bernard Wright of St. Petersburg, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Thomas of Farmington. The Rev. Canon LeRoy Lawson officiated at the single-ring ceremony, and Dr. Wright gave his daughter in marriage.

Her gown was white imported Swiss organza, with wide bands of tulle trimming the neckline and skirt. Her illusion veil was cathedral length, and she carried white roses, lilies of the valley and stephanotis, with a white orchid center.

Betsy Ann Phelps, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Nancy Adams, Sandra Sue Adams and Lynn Lovell Burns. Assisting the bridegroom were best man Gerald Lee Nelson and ushers Donald Howard Wright, brother of the bride, William Walker Phell, William Knight Zewald, David Hodgson, Nicholas Casaro and Julian Cannon.

The reception was held at St. Petersburg Yacht Club, and the couple honeymooned in Puerto Rico.

The bride is a graduate of Florida State University and affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta Sorority. The bridegroom holds degrees in marketing from Florida State and Michigan State Universities.

Northville Players Rehearse

"And Then There Were None" will be performed by the Northville Players Guild Oct. 27 and Oct. 28 at 8:30 p.m. at the Northville High School Auditorium.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Student tickets are 75 cents and $1.50 for adults.

The Guild is now in full rehearsal for the play which is an adaptation of Agatha Christie murder mystery with an unusual ending.

The action takes place on Indian Island off the coast of Devon, England.

The story revolves around the wish of one person to take justice into his own hands dealing out capital punishment to ten people he has invited to the island on false pretenses.

Each death fits the line of a poem hanging above the mantelpiece and with each murder another little Indian statue topples off the mantel and breaks.

Finally there is just one little Indian left.

LINDA TUTOR

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Tutor, of Laurel Avenue, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda, to Barry Schaffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Schaffer, of Benson Court, Westland. Both are graduates of Franklin High School, and the prospective bridegroom attends Schoolcraft Community College and is employed by Hydramation Engineering Co. A spring wedding is planned.

Useless To Save Seeds

It's always a temptation to save seeds from a particularly fine flower but it is of a hybrid variety there is little advantage in so doing. The seedlings grown from your home-saved seeds will not produce flowers like those of the parent bloom. In fact the blossoms will vary in size and color and many will be inferior.

CAROL LAWSHE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lawshe, of Meadowlark Avenue, Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Ruth, to John Arthur Kuenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Kuenzel, of Grand Rapids. The bride-elect will graduate in December from the University of Michigan where she is teaching Spanish and plans to continue work toward a master's degree. Her fiancé has a master's degree from the University of Michigan and is a special education teacher in Livonia. A Nov. 22 wedding is planned in the campus chapel in Ann Arbor.

At Livonia Town Hall UN Figure Is Speaker

The greatest suspense story of our time or any time, believes former United Nations Ambassador Marietta Tree, is the struggle between nationalism and internationalism.

"It's a race that will decide whether there will be a human race," she told a Livonia Town Hall audience Wednesday. The attractive blonde speaker left no doubt in the minds of the women who attended the Town Hall open as to where she stands in the battle.

It is squarely on the side of internationalism as exemplified by the United Nations activities "because that is the side of long-term self interest for our country and any other."

"A country strictly nationalist," Mrs. Tree said, "is a suicidal nation."

SHE ADDED she saw and deplored tendencies in this direction on the part of the United States in the forms of higher protective tariffs and reduction of foreign aid.

"We don't give foreign aid in order to be loved," she emphasized. "We do it to enable underdeveloped countries to help themselves better and sooner."

Mrs. Tree said she's against giving weapons, because that doesn't accomplish a constructive purpose, and she's inclined to agree with U.S. Senator William Fulbright who would like to see more foreign aid channeled through the United Nations.

"The U.N.," she explained, "can control the use of the aid and set a time table for completion of projects."

SHE CONCEDED that aid through the United Nations might go in part to Communist nations.

"But the more bourgeois and contented the Communist countries become, the less menace they are to us," she pointed out.

The first woman named a United Nations ambassador from this country, Mrs. Tree has more recently served as a member of the New York State Constitutional Convention, and thinks that now that work is completed she may do some intensive study in the field of city planning.

"Aside from world peace, I can't think of a more important matter at this time," she said.

She said the United Nations has not been able to take up officially the burning question of the Vietnam war because North Vietnam is not a member and therefore the matter hasn't been put before it.

"BUT OF COURSE it's the biggest matter in the corridor discussions," she said. "And the feeling among most of the U.N. delegates seems to be that if the U.S. were to unconditionally stop the bombing, negotiations would follow. I don't know the basis for this opinion, but I know it's there."

Married to a former British MP and investment banker, Mrs. Tree and the mother of two daughters, the speaker has been active in American political circles for years and had brief descriptions to offer on several national leaders.
