Avoid Crisis At Christmas

Christmas is the time to be a Wise Man if you want to have holidays to remember fondly instead of feverishly!

Research Work Is Costly

ANN ARBOR -- Research expenditures at the University of Michigan during the 1966-67 year totaled almost $60-million. This was an increase of 14 per cent over the previous year, when the research volume passed the $1-million per week rate for the first time.

In a 1966-67 summary, A. Geoffrey Norman, U-M's vice president for research, pointed out that much of the support for research continues to come from federal government agencies. Federal funds for the past year amounted to $45.8 million and accounted for 77 per cent of the total.

University funds supplied $5.8 million and other support came from industry, private foundations, health organizations, and other sources.

DR. NORMAN emphasized that almost all the federal funds for university research must be justified in terms of its contributions to the sponsoring agency's specific mission. It is simply not the case, he said, "that the federal government provides undesignated funds to colleges and universities to foster the development of their research activities."

If you want to "reign" this season follow these five tips, and avoid the Christmas Crisis!

(1) Six people extra have come to caroling and it's dinner time!

(2) No gift for Lisa! In she comes smiling, arms outstretched and bearing a present "especially for you!"

(3) You feel like you've been run over by Santa's reindeer!

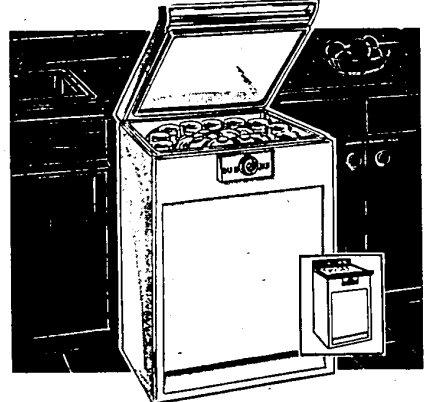

(4) Size your friends up! Don't make the mistake of buying clothing for your friends without knowing the exact size.

(5) "The children were tucked in their beds" . . . again and again!

Children may not have to go much actual "work" on Christmas, but just being around so much excitement and preparation can make them tired and irritable! There are "special" nights when children should be allowed to stay up past their bedtime, but if you let each night seem too special, they get confused and "spoiled."
