CAROLING FOR VISITORS -- If you come to the porch of the William Flattery home at 26634 Westmeath, Farmington, you'll be greeted, even in the coldest weather, by these pretty Christmas carolers.

Decorations Light Up Area

Christmas in Suburbia has transformed a once quiet Farmington countryside into a magic holiday scene stretching mile upon mile in all directions.

Visiting Suburbia must be the most pleasant part of Santa's trip.

For one thing, he can take advantage of wide, sliding patio doors to make some of his entrances easier than squeezing down sooty chimneys.

All his way is well lighted — throughout the Farmington countryside he'll find homes aglow with lights and decorations.

He'll hear the sounds of Christmas, too, where ever he goes — from choirs in new contemporary churches to carolers in suburban-style school rooms to transistor radios carried by teenagers on shopping sprees.

Where once only far apart farm houses twinkled a welcome to occasional travelers along the way, picture window after picture window give forth signs of holiday cheer.

Station wagons with studded snow tires instead of sleighs carry families to the market place — which now means the corner shopping center.

True, the countryside has changed, but the people living in this now-busy countryside, still search for the true meaning of Christmas — peace on earth, goodwill toward men.

Bill Says: Merry Christmas

Chiming in with our joyful greetings of the season and our deep appreciation of your kind patronage.

Welfare Opens Doors

Retirees, men and women, are missing many opportunities for a new, vibrant career. The new responsible role of a volunteer in human welfare can open the doors to new interests and friends.

There are numerous fascinating positions available, and in locales near your home, regardless of where you live. Just to cite a few, consider yourself as a helpmate to children, tutoring them in basic elementary subjects; develop recreational activities or games with mentally retarded boys and girls, or perhaps provide a bright day in the lives of socially and economically deprived youngsters.

For a whole new way of living, call the Oakland County volunteer Bureau, 642-7272.

When the judges were looking at homes and their Christmas decorations, the weather certainly didn't fit the mood — rain and fog. First prize, a blender, went to the Tomcocks.

family on Northwest; Ginny and Larry Hight took second prize; an electric grille and third prize, a Teflon steam and dry iron, went to newcomers, the Westons on Briarclon. Congratulations to all.

The Tuesday Bridge Club met, Dec. 12 in Lucy Andridge's home and discovered it was short one player. In desperation they called me and said that all the "dummies" would help baby sit Jimmy, my grandson. Fortunately — for them I had other plans.

SUE AND JAKE Hage hosted the December meeting of the Pinochle Club. Men's prize was won by Lyle Young and Bev Setter won the women's. Those trying their luck were Elaine and Sheldon Watson, Irene and Lyle Young, Bev and Bob Setter, Halma and Bob Fritzel, Dorothy and Dave Smith and the Hages.

Zeke Copp reports turkeys were won in the Men's Bowling League by Don Hug and Fritz Worthington. The ladies were trying their luck on Dec. 20. If any of you wonder what the papers are pasted all over the storm door and front windows of the Don Thomas home on Ravenscroft and our home occasionally, let me say we are not being picketed.

Our sons are on the North Farmington varsity basketball team and someone called The Midnight Raiders make up poems and signs of encouragement and put them up the day the team has a game.

So far the team's record is three won and one lost — and they have won the three games with a total of seven points — so you can see they have been really exciting.

AS IF Christmas weren't enough, many families have birthday celebrations to think about. Two will share the 27th — Donna Hug and Kim Westan; Roy Schenkel's is the 18th, two share the 29th — Debby Setter and Betty Neuman; and again a pair on the 30th — Debby Bramlage and Grace MacLeod. And Dec. 29 is another wedding anniversary for Mickey and Joe Colombario of Briarclon.

Have a very merry Christmas one and all and see you next year!
