Initial Prayer Breakfast Set

A Farmington version of the Community Leadership Prayer Breakfast, held annually in Washington, D.C., since 1952 has been scheduled for Jan. 15 to help further the cause of a national spiritual awakening.

George E. Gullen, Jr., Wayne State University vice-president for university relations and president of the national council of YMCAs, will deliver the principal address.

THE BREAKFAST is being sponsored by the Farmington Jaycees whose announcement of the event calls it "an effort to bring to our community an opportunity to discuss and discover collectively the foundation stones of our nation's life."

Dr. John H. Richardson is general chairman, and he has announced the following program for the 7:30 a.m. gathering in the Himmelsbach restaurant:

Opening prayer by Mayor Wilbur V. Brotherton of Farmington, welcome by vice-president John Bailey of the Jaycees, Old Testament reading by President F.J. Orlans of Quakertown, New Testament reading by Township Trustee Earl C. Oppertbauer and a closing prayer by President William E. Brown of Woodcreek Farms following Gullen's address.

Music will be provided by the Palmcoires of Farmington High School under the direction of William Feuch.

ALTHOUGH this will be the first such event of its type in Farmington, similar breakfasts have become annual fixtures in many American cities since given impetus by leadership groups in Congress 16 years ago.

Dr. Richardson said invitations have been sent to business, political, governmental and educational leaders of the area, as well as presidents of various subdivision groups and service clubs, plus members of the clergy.

"The breakfast will provide a vehicle of expression for our leaders regarding their concern for a renewed morality, new emphasis on 'our nation under God,' the need to bring God into every facet of our personal and collective life, and the need for laymen to assume a personal responsibility for GEORGE E. GULLEN, JR., their community's spiritual life as well as its economic, political, educational and social life," said Dr. Richardson.

In Gullen, the group attending the breakfast will hear an executive who long has been active in area and national civic affairs. He joined the administrative staff at Wayne State University in 1966 after serving as vice-president for industrial relations of American Motors Corp.
