Health Chief Warns Of Ice Skating Dangers

Ice skating can be fun. It can also be dangerous. "Every year we see or hear of skating accidents that could have been prevented," said Dr. John J. Hanlon, Detroit health commissioner. "None of us want to toss a wet blanket on the enjoyment so many youngsters receive from such healthy exercise as ice skating. But there are a few rules that boys and girls could observe that would allow them to skate worry-free."

Standing beyond the weakened ice, extend anything—a ladder, pole, rope, hockey stick, even a piece of clothing—to the victim. If nothing is available, and there are people nearby, form a human chain, each person lying on the ice and grasping the ankles of the person in front of him.

"The first person should grab the victim's wrists and the entire line wriggle backwards, drawing the victim to firm, safe ice."

National News Round Up

AN OIL HEIRESS has left the bulk of her $50 million estate to New York state for the use of the public. Mrs. Melbert B. Cary, Jr., who died in New York City Dec. 28 at the age of 66 said that the money could be used for public purposes or religious, charitable, scientific or educational programs. She also left the state a 1,700 acre tract near Mullbrook, N.Y., for conservation use.

Hare Names Aides For 2 Top Posts

LANSING -- Promotions in two key non-classified positions at the Michigan Department of State have been announced by Secretary of State James M. Hare.

Hare appointed James F. McClure, 45, Haslett, to succeed Richard M. Cook of East Lansing, as deputy secretary of state. Cook resigned to accept an executive position with the new federal safety agency in Washington, D.C.

To succeed McClure, Hare tapped Howard L. Jones, Lansing, who has served as executive secretary of the branch managers association.

Both men began their new duties January 2.
