Housing Shows Climb In '67

Despite population increases throughout the United States, the American housing industry is experiencing a number of problems and last year the number of new houses fell to the lowest level since World War II.

Tight money forced the industry as close to a depression as it has experienced in the last 20 years in 1967.

Buyers cannot write off the industry in the red this year, however, because there has been a slow but steady recovery trend of 448,000 private housing starts.

THE LATEST FIGURES on housing seem to indicate a healthy gain, and maybe it is. Housing starts in November, for the fifth straight month, reaching an annual rate of 1,556,000 units, nearly 72 percent higher than the 1966 low.

But, coincidental with these figures are some less encouraging symptoms: mortgage interest has now risen to its highest rate of the year, prices are up and housing permits, which foretell future construction, are lower.

In other words, housing may be headed for trouble once again, with money once more the disease in itself that otherwise might be in roaring good health.

THIS IS WHAT new home purchasers were offered in October: Interest rate, 6.52 percent; length of loan, 24.4 years; loan to purchase price ratio, 74 percent; and purchase price, $27,500.

These are averages from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and include rather widely differing rates for savings and loan associations, life insurance companies, mortgage companies and commercial and mutual savings banks. But, as averages, they still tell a story.

Average interest rates actually were lower in October than a year earlier, but a steady increase for several weeks accelerated in November, and rates now are near last year's high. In addition, home prices have risen $1,000 in one year.

Partially offsetting these costlier factors are steadily rising incomes for most families, more jobs and less unemployment. Few analysts believe, however, that these financial pluses offset the higher costs of buying a home.

THE MOST DISTURBING aspect of the present situation is the demand for housing is building up powerfully and, in some areas, is outpacing the supply of new units. At more reasonable rates, would amount to a boom.

The biggest demand, potentially, is from the large number of persons born immediately after World War II. Another source of demand is from the great number of families which last year postponed purchases.

As a result, vacancy rates are now at their lowest of the
