Livonian Awarded Coveted Alex Dow Award By Edison

Joseph Levine of Livonia, will be one of five Detroit Edison workers to receive the company's Alex Dow award next Monday in the Shafter Hilton Hotel. The presentations will be made by Board Chairman Walker L. Ciesler.

The award, established in 1916 to honor the late Alex Dow, electric industry pioneer who headed Edison Company for 28 years, is made annually to company employees in recognition of achievements of unusual merit.

Each recipient receives a citation, a gold lapel pin, an engraved watch and 10 shares of Detroit Edison stock.

Receiving the award for 1967 will be Engineer Levine of Livonia for outstanding achievement in the design of substations now being rebuilt to meet increasing customer demands.

Levine, whose home is at 10015 Camden in Livonia, was cited for his outstanding engineering achievement in the development of a concept now being used in the company's program of rebuilding substations to meet ever-increasing customer needs.

Working almost entirely on his own time, Levine developed an engineering design which will enable the company to improve operating flexibility and, at the same time, realize substantial savings in the rebuilding of the stations.

Levine, a native of Brooklyn, holds a degree in electrical engineering from Pratt Institute in that city. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, and is active in the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers as a member of the national substation committee, system expansion task force.

Before joining Detroit Edison in 1954, he was employed by Long Island Lighting Company and Gussow & Skidmore Consulting Engineers.

While on leave from the Edison Company he assisted Atomic Power Development Associates in the design work on the Enrico Fermi Atomic Power Plant near Monroe.

For the past 13 years he and his wife, Lillian, have made their home at the Camden address. The Levines have four children—Henry, Barry, Robert and Vicki.
