Foundation Opens Headquarters

The Detroit Chapter of the Hemophilia Foundation has opened a new headquarters and is preparing for a fund drive next month.

The headquarters is at 14755 Grand River.

Mrs. Evelyn Bernard, Mrs. Alma McClure, Mrs. Joan Moses and Mrs. Vera Rowden will head the fund drive in late April. Those interested in assisting may call 357-2225.

The foundation is a national organization with headquarters based in New York City.

Hemophilia is one of the oldest hereditary diseases known to man. Only recently has it received the attention it deserves. It is no longer a rare malady. The affliction now affects 100,000 hemophiliacs and, indirectly, about 300,000 others in the United States alone.

Most patients suffer from what is known as classic hemophilia. The pattern of heredity is a most unusual one. It shows up in males but is passed on only through female carriers.

Classical hemophilia is a congenital disease in which the clotting of the blood is abnormally delayed. At present it is incurable. The only effective treatment, for a bleeder, is the transfusion of fresh whole blood, plasma, or clotting factor concentrates.
