"ALL MY WORK is almed at making average city and suburban men and women aware that urban economics is relievant to their way of life," says Dr. Murray.

"The problem of the cities basically economic. The city must provide employment, goods and services. He reason for boday is as a marketplace for trading. The failure in the big city is a failure of economic trading. The failure in the big city is a failure of economic function.

"For instance, problems of housing and fabor, training and transportation help make it difficult to get domestic help in the suburbs: Lack of transportation is a contributor to poverty.

"Economics, when you relate it this way, is not the big mystery so many people think it is, it is everyday life.

"If we economists could only get across to everybody that one's self-interests are direct-ly affected by other people's self-interest in urban life, We need to advertise the advantages principles. This is what I hope my new book will do. Ivory tower economists have killed all interest in the subject."
