Supervisor Boundaries Are Upheld

One phase of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors reapportionment battle was settled this week when proposed boundary lines of 27 new districts were upheld by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The court dismissed a legal suit based on a claim that the redistricting map was drawn by the Reapportionment Commission to give Democrats an unfair population advantage.

When reapportionment becomes effective, the Oakland County board will have a membership of 27 representatives instead of the present 87. A person elected to the role of township supervisor may no longer hold both offices.

Although Supreme Court clarification still is being sought, a recent ruling by the attorney general's office makes it appear as though creation of a new board of supervisors will be at stake in this fall's election.

The election will be on a partisan basis, and prospective candidates have until June 18 to file nominating petitions to gain listing on the Aug. 6 primary ballot.

Developers Stuck With New River

Farmington Township has a new river which nobody wants. The river appeared in the middle of a 50-acre site north of Grand River between Hathaway and Haggerty Rds.

Hubbard Associates is building an industrial park on the site which now features an impressive tributary of water flowing from sources unknown.

Contractors attempting to install sewer lines tapped into several flowing wells and their newly dug trench rapidly filled with water.

An agent from the State Conservation Department has taken water samples and hopes to trace the source of the underground vein. It is believed the water comes from two small lakes to the west but wherever it's coming from, it's still coming.

The contractors now must dig a new trench, at additional expense to Hubbard Associates, and hopefully avoid tapping into the same vein.
