

Reform Bill Big Suburbs' Court Districts Left Intact

BULLETIN
LANSING — The State Senate, which earlier in the week had rejected the district court reform bill, finally gave it 26-4 approval late Thursday night. Local Republican Senators George Kuhn and N. Lorraine Beebe voted in favor; Democrat William Faust was absent. The bill is expected to get Gov. Romney's approval.

Livonia, Garden City and Westland city councils have seven days after the governor signs it to vote by resolution to retain their municipal courts.

Bigger suburbs would find their court systems little changed, but smaller cities and townships will find themselves facing entirely new systems under a new lower court reorganization bill in the Legislature.

Livonia, Redford and Westland would have their own courts, just as they do now.

Farmington and Plymouth would find themselves lumped with other communities in districts.

THE LOWER court reorganization bill last week passed the House, 76-30, with solid support from the suburbs.

Republicans Louis Schmidt of Livonia and Raymond Baker of Farmington, along with Democrats Richard Young of Dearborn Heights, John Bennett of Redford, James Tierney of Garden City and Vincent J. Pettipiece of Westland, all voted yes.

The nay votes came mostly from Detroit Democrats and out-state Republicans from small towns like Buchanan and Plainwell.

The bill was lost in the Senate, however, at least temporarily. With two-thirds (26 votes) needed for passage, the bill won by only 21-8.

Observerland Republican Senators George Kuhn of West Bloomfield and N. Lorraine Beebe of Dearborn Heights voted yes. Democrat William Faust of Westland didn't vote.

LOCAL DISTRICTS, under the latest bill, would look like this:

Livonia would be a court district and have two judges. This is unchanged from the present system.

The same would be true for Redford Township and the City of Westland.

Garden City would constitute a court district but have only a single judge.

Waterfowl Counts Up In Area

Waterfowl brood counts show a significant increase this spring, according to game biologists of the State Conservation Department.

Mourning dove surveys show their count is holding its own or showing a slight increase.

The pheasant population continues to hellow, however.

Conservation officers urge the outdoor public to leave wildlife babies alone, even if they appear to be abandoned. Usually, mother isn't far away.

INSURANCE AGENCY

We genuinely believe we offer an exceptional opportunity for an active, experienced insurance agent to profitably associate with our very highly respected, small, centrally located downtown Detroit agency now celebrating over a half century of general insurance service.

Our agency has been operated solely as a "service agency" to our larger Mortgage Banking & Real Estate operations; in all of our years, no concentration of time nor effort has been expended to fully capitalize on the personal and business entrees so developed.

We need an ambitious agency man who (a) wants relief from the financial burden and administrative responsibilities incident to his agency operation, (b) wants more time in the field for his production, (c) wants an office, staff and companies of which he is proud and upon which he can depend, (d) wants to negotiate a commission split arrangement which will net him at least 50% more of each earned commission than he now retains, (e) wants to build an equity in the agency itself, and (f) has the proven ability to currently produce a reasonable volume of profitable business.

From the right individual or agency, we shall be most receptive to any plan of association (except the sale of our agency) which may provide for permanence and security. Hence, we invite inquiries which fully detail the personal and business background of interested individuals and/or agencies.

You are assured your reply will be received in ABSOLUTE confidence. The employees of our firm know of this opportunity.
