

If you were stuck stateside in '43, missed Korea and are too old for Vietnam, maybe you can win your medal in Detroit this summer.

Posthumously.

It's so easy. Especially if you listen to every ridiculous rumor about what's going to happen in your neighborhood this summer.

You see, the rumors will get you all tensed up. And when you get tensed up, you're liable to buy a gun. Or maybe load the one you've had in the attic for the past 10 years.

Once you've got the gun, you'll be ready for some do-it-yourself heroics.

Then at the first sign of a fourth-hand rumor of trouble, you can grab your weapon and rush out to protect home and family.

Just don't be surprised if the last thing you hear is a loud "kapowie!" Unfortunately the guy next door wanted to be a hero, too. And with that gun, you sure looked like trouble.

Ah yes... your medal. A beaut. Etched in granite—Rest In Peace, 1968.
