Universities Must Assume Racial Task

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.—
Universities as institutions must speak out on today's racial crisis. because they are 'qompetant to do so and because solution to the crisis is essential to the larger society, University of Michigan President

Robben Fleming declared,
But in another controversial area, the war in Vietnam, undversity governing boards and administrators lack the competence to declare an official institutional policy, Fleming said.

/ Moreover, society does not require such a policy statement on "the global question" of the war from its universities. The Michigan president spoke at the University of Virginia Law School on "The University and the Larger Society," the first of a series of lectures entitled "Reflections of a President."

FLEMING POSED questions of who a university is, on what issues it should speak, and he drew careful distinctions in answering them:

"It is one thing for me to express my cultizer's view that the war in Vietnam is a mis-take-which if do-and it is another to make such a statement on behalf of the University of Michigan," he said, "As to race relations, unlike Vietnam, we are not deal-ing with an Asian culture which is foreign to the Westernworth or with restricted internation with restricted internation with, the said of the control of the c

It is important to recognize, said President Fleming, "that It is important to recognize and president Fieming, what a university is not a monolith and that it speaks with many voices?—from the governing board as legal authority to expressions and acts of individuals with the university may be full to reflect the university.

It is tunnorant to raccorate. the administration or govern-ling board have any particular competence in the area, and second, is it essential to the larger community that the uni-versity speak out in its offi-cial role?

These are the criteria ap-plied to what, "in the last analysis, is simply a mater of judgment," Fleming said,

Plan your vacation house to make it easy for you to prepare and serve informal meals and make broad use in the kitchen and dining areas of surfacing materials like ceramic tile that actilitate fast clean-up afterwards.
