Marshall Smith, who passed away at his residence in Redford on Wednesday of last week, was one of the few surviving early residents of the town.

He was born in Redford on July 20, 1849, and always continued a resident of that village until his death.

The funeral, which was in charge of Undertaker Northrop, proceeded from the residence to the Presbyterian church which was crowded to its full capacity by the many friends and sympathizers who came to pay their last tribute to one whom they highly esteemed.

Rev. Evans had charge of the service and preached a thoughtful sermon based on Mark 13:35-37. From the church the funeral procession went to Grand Lawn cemetery, where interment took place.

The deceased was married to Clara Louise Dunning in the year 1877 and who, with her two children, Perry of Redford and Verna of Toledo, and two grandchildren, survives him.
