It's Still A New Year...

and a chance to put new emphasis on an old idea. An idea that has been tested and proven in every progressive community in this land.

Some call it a Chamber of Commerce, others call it a Merchants' Association. But no matter what you call it, such an organization is a must in a growing community. Only by helping ourselves can we build the kind of community we will be proud of. This has been true in the past and it will be even more true in the future.

What is good for the fellow down the street is good for every merchant and every citizen in the community. Only by promoting the city and township trading area can we expect to get the services we all want and need. More business, better business and more industry means more revenue for the people and governments of our community. There is no other answer - it's trading area.

The Farmington trading area can meet the challenge of progressive near-by communities by working together as an organization. They can encourage other needed businesses, they can plan for the future. Such an organization in Farmington can accomplish these things, because it is being done every day in neighboring communities, large and small.

It need not necessarily be a new organization, but a segment of various present groups. Regardless of the method - it must be accomplished if we as a community are to compete in this fast-moving world - if we are to enjoy the services and prosperity we want and need.

Running the Gauntlet Again

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON

TRUMAN'S TEMPER
All presidents, being human, sometimes lose their temper. And Harry Truman, being intensely devoted to his family, has an understandable tendency to shoot from the hip when it comes to his wife and daughter.
However, those on the inside of the White House know that presidential fuse-blowing is not confined to protecting his family. More and more the President's temper has influenced public policy. Quick decisions, swayed by personal peeve, can affect the lives of millions, and the public has a right to know about them.

Take, for instance, price controls. Failure to impose price controls has shot up the cost of living by billions of dollars, has increased the cost of rearmament to Uncle Sam, and started an inflation spiral which may do incalculable damage.

Yet congress long ago voted presidential power to impose price controls. In fact, Republicans led in giving the President more power than he requested. However, this power has not been used.

ANTI-BARUCH
One reason is that Bernard Baruch came down to Washington and helped persuade the Republicans to vote these powers; and the President hates Bernard Baruch. He hates him with a passion that distorts and discolors his judgment. When Baruch's name comes up in conversations, dispassion and reason leave the President.

The hatred began when Baruch declined an invitation to serve on a committee of Democrats to raise money during the 1948 campaign. Baruch then wrote him a letter not unlike the one sent to music critic Paul Hume; later, he fired Baruch's brother as ambassador to Holland and timed it to occur on Baruch's birthday. Baruch, once a frequent caller at the White House, has never been near there since.

Later, the President blamed Baruch for getting revenge on him by blocking confirmation of Truman's close friend, Mon Wallgren, as chairman of the national security resources board. Baruch denies this. But his influence, considerable, and White House advisers gave him credit for the fact that Wallgren was never confirmed.

ANTI-TAFT
Another illustration of what presidential peeve can do to national policy is Sen. Bob Taft.

For a long time the President has been willing to let the bipartisan foreign policy board on an even keel. But the cornerstone of such a policy is Senator Taft—most influential Republican on capital hill.

For his part, Taft has made no (Continued on Page Eight)

INTERPRETING THE NEWS
By GENE ALLEMAN

Hardly had smoke from the inaugural salute blown away when Governor Williams had legislative G. O. P. leaders in to puff a peace pipe and discuss a method of co-operation. Republicans were suspicious. Says Senator G. Elwood Bonine (R. Vandallia): Republicans are willing to cooperate for the good of the state but will judge Williams' sincerity by his actions.

Asked if there were G. O. P. "strings" attached to his cooperation, Williams would say only "let's watch this thing from a while before we say anything further."

In budget-pinched Michigan, legislators are committed to sequestration for civil defense. Some defense leaders urge consideration of a "sub-capital" from which the state could be governed if the Lansing offices were bombed. The lawmakers look at the accounts and say nothing.

But an organization similar to the Forest Fire Service of World War II is being considered. Methods of combating possible subversive or actual open fire warfare in forested acreage was studied by state fire wardens at their annual meeting January 3 - 11.

The spectre of added taxes is stalking the legislative chambers. Will it mean a personal income tax as was discussed two years ago? Most lawmakers agree that more corporation taxes would be paid by the consumer. An alternative, more sales taxes, is lagging in popularity.

Corrections Commissioner Ernest Brooks returned from his vacation to step into a hall of craters that he has been too lenient with his paroles. Says Brooks: "I have done nothing not within my authority."

Michigan farmers are asking if ceiling prices on grains will be applied during 1951. They will need to buy grains if they are to effect livestock increases. A national stockpile of feed grains to total nearly a billion bushels, it is doubtful if ceilings will be imposed during the year.

The liquor control commission is still in a lather. Chairman Harry Henderson has been replaced by Allan B. Milham, Kalamazoo, but Henderson says he will not give up the job until his successor is approved by the senate. He hints at court action even though his term expired December 15.

The governor's supporters embarrassed him at a harmony banquet by booing when it was announced that Republican Lieutenant Governor William C. Vandenberg had sent his regrets. Vandenberg says he forgot his tux.

Kitt Clardy, Lansing attorney and co-founder of "Fighting Republicans Inc.", jumps back into the spotlight with a series of radio broadcasts in the Capital City and in Flint. His theme: "I am so ready" (Continued on Page Five)

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (January 15, 1926)
Exhibit Ford Cars
The showroom of Olin Russell, local Ford dealer, is just about the most popular place in the village this week. Not only is a full line of improved cars being shown, but the trim lines of the various types are enhanced by such new appointments as brightly colored wire wheels, top boots, gypsy curtains, and windshield wipers. The gasoline tank is now filled from outside the car and in the open types a door at the drivers' left permits entry or exit without disturbing the front seat passenger.

Set Limit for Auto Plates
Automobile owners of Oakland County had until today to get their 1926 license plates, after which they will be arrested and taken to court, according to an order sent to the police chiefs of all the cities and villages in the county by Sheriff Frank Schram. Since the first of the year, ten of the delinquent owners have made any effort to get plates and the staff in the County Clerk's office has had only a few calls.

TEN YEARS AGO (January 9, 1941)
Draft Call Doubled
Draft Board No. 5, under which eligible men from Farmington Township and the City of Farmington are registered, together with other county local boards, will send twice as many men in February as were called in January, according to information released in Lansing this week. These numbers must be augmented by replacements from those which may be turned down by army medical examiners when this month's class is inducted, probably January 27.

FIVE YEARS AGO (January 10, 1946)
Food Handlers' Ordinance Effective February 1
The third and final reading of City Ordinance No. C-25-45 was held and passed upon at the meeting of the City Commission Wednesday night. Under the provisions of the ordinance, effective February 1, every person handling open and exposed food in all establishments in the city must have a physical examination which insures that he is without any communicable or contagious disease.

Named CPA Chairman
Robert L. Poe has been appointed chairman of Price Control Board 3363.1, in Pontiac, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. J. Diebel as of December 31, 1945.

Little Stories about Great Hymns
Hark, Hark, My Soul!
Hark, hark, my soul! angelic songs are swelling
O'er earth's green fields and ocean's unbounded shore;
How sweet the truth those blessed strains are telling
Of that new life when sin shall be no more!
Angels of Jesus, angels of light,
Singing to welcome the pilgrims of the night!

Every Sunday, in hundreds of Protestant congregations, choirs and members sing this glorious old hymn of Frederick Faber, usually unaware that its author was of the Catholic faith. Faber wrote some 130 hymns in a successful attempt to expand the limited number of English hymns for the Catholic laity. "Faith of Our Fathers" is another that has gained wide popularity with Protestants as well.

BIBLE COMMENT

In Ephesus, Paul Made Both Converts And Bitter Enemies

LAST week we discussed Paul's visit in Corinth, where he stayed for a year and a half. Paul's next journey was to Ephesus and there he spent two years and three months. As in Corinth, he ran into opposition when he spoke in the synagogue and after three months the friction was such that he withdrew with the Christian disciples.

Determined to continue his discussions of Christianity, he "disputed daily" in the school of one Tyrannus, where he met both Jews and Greeks and made many converts. Miracles of healing also spread Paul's fame. "So mightily grew the word of the Lord and prevailed."

Trouble arose, however, when local silvermiths, who had a profitable trade making silver shrines for the worship of the Goddess Diana, found their business falling off. They traced the reason to Paul and stirred up a mob of people against him. As a result Paul found it advisable to go to Macedonia.

It was this incident alone that made it necessary for Paul to journey on for he had found little need to defend himself against the sort of rebuke that confronted him in Corinth.

For an adequate impression of the church at Corinth, we must turn to the Epistle to the Ephesians.

The epistle dovetails into the Epistle to the Colossians because both flow from the inner experience of a man deeply moved by his own personal circumstances and the power of the Christ who inspired him.
