Farmington Is Assured . . .

of having the opportunity to vote on whether or not they want City Manager form of government.

There never was too much doubt about it, but the Charter Commission made it official at their fifted meeting last week. The primary purpose of the charter revision is to modernize the city government as well as adding efficiency and professional "know how". We are confident these are the basic reasons why the voters of Farmington overwhelmingly ap proved the revision question proved the revision question.

The Charter Commission can now get down to the details of drafting the new charter. You can help them and help yourself by attending these commission meetings. They are open to the public. In fact, the degree of interest shown by the people will measure to a great extent he kind of charter that is finally formed. Your constructive suggestions can help the Commission in drafting a workable and acceptable departer. ceptable charter.

This job of making the rules as well as playing the game of government is serious business. Everybody plays, not just the professionals. They do, at least, if everyone is to benefit — that's democracy. It can't continue to work unless everybody uses it. Every citizen of the city has a right and should exercise the right to join the game. There are no sideline benches or water boys.

Make it a responsibility to attend as many of the Charter Commission meetings as possible. This is your city and the kind of charter you are going to be governed by in the future is your business.

is being made to encourage the merchants of the Farmington area to get together and work together for the betterment of themselves and the community.

The American Legion, along with a number of merchants, have set February 24 and 25 as the dates for the Second Annual Mid-Winter Festival. During last year's festival nearly 4,000 people moved through the merchant displays at the Legion Home.

This is an exallent program that decomes the

the merchant displays at the Legion Home.

This is an excellent program that deserves the support of all of the people that are interested in seeing Farmington develop as a greater shopping center. This should serve as the beginning of a permanent trade promotion and community development organization. Farmington must, if it is to compete progressively with its neighbor communities, go beyond the Mid-Winter festival. It must work, plan and promote together for a better community.

Farmington has the basic qualities necessary to Farmington has the basic qualities necessary to establish this organization. It has the future potential to set its goals on. Let's hope that the Mid-Winter Festival can stimulate the initiative necessary to make cooperation and collective action a reality. Time is getting short!

It seems that almost since we can remember it seems that almost since we can remember, there have been pros and cons about the plan to pull the two peninsulas of Michigan together. First, a group of experts cay it can't be done—then another group says it can. Now we have word from leading bridge authorities that it not only can be done but group says it can. Now we have word from reading bridge authorities that it not only can be done but it would be wise and economically sound.

The erection of such a bridge would not only serve to pull Michigan together and boost the economy of both peninsulas, but would be a great aid from a military preparedness standpoint. Though it would be a primary enemy air target, its use exclusive of air attack would be invaluable.

Equally important to the people of Michigan is the news that it could be built in four years and paid for out of revenues in 30 years. Whether it is built now or later, its value to Michigan is unmeasurable. It would stimulate the state's tourist business, step up its commerce and industry, assist in the development of now unused tracts of land. This in addition to the convenience to the people of the state. We now have the facts. It's time we got down to the big job of making it a reality.

BIBLE COMMENT

For Comfort or For Faith, Turn To the Holy Bible

To the Holy Bible
THE horrors of war bring fresh trens of passion from the lips and pens of poets, writers and armchalr philosophers—words that who have met grief first hand in the person of a succinct telegram from the Department of Defense.

Genuine grief more often expresses itself in faltering words and glatening sears than in highly comfort that truly assuages the aching wounds of the heart is more often couched in simple, plainly stated words.

It is by virtue of their stamplicity and the state of the sible have medured these many centuries. Whether words are sought to console the loss of a loved ohe, strengthen wavering fatth, provide hope, inspire repentance, or give counsel, the Bible's simple words are sought provided hope, inspire repentance, or give counsel, the Bible's simple words as platedly and steadfastly as "a river of water, clear as crystal." In Fashm 18, it is declared that the and that "Three are no feeches nor languages where their volces are not heard."

The wisdom and compassionate strength of the Lord prevades every paragraph and parable of seek it, as well as rewarding companionship.

The general in command of Chinese troops fighting in Korea, Lin Piao, is Russan-trained and violently pro-Soviet. When the Kremini strategy switched this spring, away from the compuest of Hong Kong, Lin Piao moved his 350,000 troops north to Manchuria.

But war and defense always must share front pages with wages and prices. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., has come out flatly for price control to "prevent black markets." Wage controls, he admitted, would make him un-SILVER BULLETS

Once a Kuomintang lender, General Chen has been susceptible to "silver builets" in the past, might bee so again.

Michigan workers, however, would have an advantage over their counterparts in most other dates if both wages and prices were forzen right now. They make more money than is paid to other laborers in the nation. Michigan average has seen and the seen average is $62.
