

Trophies Presented At Annual Spring Concert

The annual Spring band concert was presented Friday, March 16, in the high school gym. Classical, jazz, popular and sacred music were featured.

The concert opened with several numbers by the fourth, fifth and sixth grade flute band. Then the intermediate band, of fourth, fifth and sixth grades, consisting of all types of instruments, played, followed by the high school band.

Soloists for the evening were Dean Bradley, alto saxophone; Fred Bendig, clarinet; Alice Annette, flute; Joseph Parinello, trumpet; Denis Cannara, clarinet; and Richard Bowers, alto saxophone.

The program ended with the presentation of the trophy awards. Denis Cannara was awarded the outstanding band member of the year trophy. Morgan Thomas' bass section was awarded the trophy. Platoon B won the marching trophy.

THE BLUE AND WHITE

Seniors In English IV See "Romeo And Juliet"

The English IV Class, accompanied by Miss Ruth Bailey, attended Wayne University's production of "Romeo and Juliet" last Friday afternoon. The performance was held at the Art Institute in Detroit.

Variations from the single set were affected by closing off portions of the stage and lowering different high-drops.

The play was directed by Leon and Leone, who has directed previous commendatory productions. Student reactions to the performance were mixed.

A school bus driven by Mr. Lancaster provided the students with transportation. J. H.

A REVIEW: HAUGHTON HUGE SUCCESS AT F. H. S. LAST THURSDAY

Cecil Haughton made a sensational hit with all Farmington High and Junior High students at an assembly last Thursday, March 15.

The assembly dealt with Haughton's adventures during his two years stay in Angmagssalik, Greenland. The village of Angmagssalik, largest village on the island of Greenland, has only 400 inhabitants. Haughton with eight other Americans spent two years there and set up a weather station.

As with most speakers, Mr. Haughton's opening remark was a humorous one. He made the students feel as if they were in an Eskimo boat, with all the girls rowing, heading for Greenland. He then conducted an imaginative scenic tour of the island and its people.

This interesting and educational assembly should have been allowed more time so that Cecil Haughton would not have been so pressed. He left out several interesting stories and slides which would have been of value to the audience. He had to talk at such a steady rate that his voice sounded strained and, at first, hard to listen to.

It is not often that Farmington has such an exceedingly talented speaker and to make him rush through his talk so quickly is disappointing, to say the least. If Haughton would have been given even a half hour more, he would have seemed less tense.

Haughton spent all sixth hour telling stories, who were interested, of other numerous adventures in Greenland. This proves the point that he had much more to say than he said in the assembly.

This assembly was by far the best that Farmington has had this year. J. L. G.

ART, HOMEMAKING VISIT CRANBROOK WED., MARCH 14

The Art and Homemaking classes visited the Cranbrook Museum and Planetarium Wednesday afternoon, March 14.

They left at 12:45 by school bus and arrived at Cranbrook at approximately 1:15. The two classes toured the grounds near the museum and looked over the post and modern Greek statues surrounding it. The high arch connecting the library and the museum had Latin sayings engraved in it.

Both classes then toured the museum. They viewed old Persian pottery, stones, furniture and also other articles from the Near and Far East.

Later, after making a thorough inspection of two rooms filled with modern and ancient paintings, the classes proceeded to the basement where they saw modern displays made by Cranbrook students.

The tour of the planetarium was interesting and very educational to all the students. They listened to many rock displays. Inspection of a special display of hand carved silver knife and gun handles completed the excursion.

The classes returned to school at 3:35. J. L. G.

FORENSIC CONTEST HELD IN LIBRARY THURSDAY NIGHT

The winners of the annual forensic speech contest were Robert Mansfield, Virginia Fryhoff, Charles Tulp and Bill Kingsley.

The program started out with the Oratorical Declamation. Dick Mason talked on "Deep Roots" and Robert Mansfield on "Education for Hate". Both of these declamations concerned racial tolerance.

Ginger Fryhoff won first place on her interpretation of the trial and prison scenes of Joan of Lorraine.

June Turner gave a dramatic interpretation of the trial scene of Marcus and Diana, "Into a Better Kingdom" taken from the late Lloyd C. Douglas' "The Robe". Edna McKerracher was named alternate with her interpretation of "Mary Stuart".

Charles Tulp gave an extemporaneous speech on "Yugoslavia", and Dick Alexander spoke on the 18 year old draft proposal. Tulp advanced the idea that Yugoslavia should set the pattern for all Communist nations who wish to escape the Iron Curtain. Alexander presented arguments for and against the 18 year old draft.

In the oratorical division Tom Isley talked on the "Dope Kings" and Bill Kingsley "Darkness Tomorrow". These were written and memorized by the contestants.

First and second place winners will go to Walled Lake to the District Meet.

Judges were Mrs. Alice Fernan-Smith, Lloyd Smith and Mr. Leo S. Peel. The chairman was Ira Mathews and the time keeper was Helen Sigler. The entire program was under the direction of Mrs. Brock, speech instructor. N. H.

Don't use the same towels over and over again. Like people, they need rest. If you allow them to dry out thoroughly in the linen closet between laundering and reuse, they'll last longer.

SENIORS WIN TO END SEASON IN FIRST PLACE

Brown's G. A. A. team won its second game of the season by beating Gardner's freshmen 10 - 3.

Anna Brown took high point honors with six.

Aho's freshmen had little trouble downing Cox's freshmen as they pulled to a 27 - 5 victory.

Lutz made 19 of her team's points. Nancy Fisher's 10 points sparked Schlottbeck's team to a 13 - 4 win over Water's sophomores.

The Seniors managed to edge out the Juniors 14 - 8 in a hard fought contest. Although trailing at the half, the Seniors held the Juniors scoreless in the second half to remain undefeated for the season.

The lineup for the Seniors was B. Howie, R. Pleron, N. Isley, M. Clapp, H. Sigler and A. Cunningham. For the Juniors A. Aho, D. Greu, J. Hamilton, P. Pringle, S. DeLong and A. Louys started.
