V. F. W. REPORTER: Wants Greater Veteran Organization

A sort of victory was won for the veterans recently when the House Veterans committee reported 13 veteran bills to the floor for placement on the calendar. Most of these bills died in the 81st Congress for various reasons. Among the important ones was H.R. 313, to provide for approximately 16,000 additional hospital beds.

The V. F. W. is attempting to prove to congress and the president the dire need for these beds. Hospital facilities for service and non-service-connected patients are expected to become worse as the disabled Korean War veterans are released.

Another bill is an amendment to H. R. 319, Serviceman Readjustment Act, to provide triple damage action against any person who sells property to a veteran at an excess value, through the veteran bought it, provided a G. I. or business loan. Another bill applies the 1955 dividend on Service Life Insurance to the premiums unless the insured has requested cash payment.

Invariably, the man who has failed to get a veteran organization to get into the future. "What do I get out of it?" The answer is simple. If he — and the majority of the 14 million veterans who do not belong to veteran organizations — will join one of the organized veteran groups, he will get protection and security for himself and the members of his family. He may be healthy today and financially independent. Tomorrow he may suddenly collapse, physically. His wife or children or possibly his future widow and surviving children, may be faced with hunger and privation. Membership in a veteran organization will give him a friendly source of aid and sympathy. His membership will help convince Congress it is economical to sound to provide all disabled veterans — disabled either by age or physical handicaps — with financial aid in the form of a pension.

There are scores of reasons why every veteran should belong to a veteran organization. The power that we seek under a strong organization has never been abused in the past. It will never be abused in the future. The veteran has definitely proved he is a patriotic citizen, and he has an honorable discharge from war-time military service to prove that fact. The men who have defended this country in time of war will never betray the nation in time of peace. Your reward also will be evident in the times that you can help recognize the disabled comrades throughout the country, and the widows and orphans of those who are deceased.

Meadowbrook Murmurs

By Mrs. Dean Eckert, PHONE C337-M

Not since 1894 had her birthday fallen on Easter Sunday, so when it did this year Mrs. Melinda Schulking's son Richard and wife of 2110 Middlebelt decided to entertain for her. It was a surprise party and all of her family were there, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Corcoran and Mr. and Mrs. James Schulking of Detroit, and from Farmington came Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schulking of Parker Street and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schulking of Ten Mile Road. Also showing "Surprise!" were a roomful of grandchildren, her sister Mrs. Selma Deitsch of Yorkville, Ohio, Mr. Cliff Summerville of Detroit and another son, Bill Schulking, with whom she makes her home on Floral Street in Farmington.

Just down the street another big family was making her big celebration. Easter Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Billing were to celebrate their 33rd anniversary Tuesday, March 27, but the family decided to visit Mom and Dad Sunday. 70's son and three daughters all get together now, too, for there's Cora and Earl at home, and from their nearby homes Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gagnon and Nancy, Mr. and Mrs. Camp Frick and Bill, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Milburn, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simpson and son Richard. Mrs. Billing's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Billing of Grand Pointe Woods, weren't able to attend as both are ill.

Home from Camp McCoy, Wisconsin for a brief Easter celebration with his parents, the Hon. W. Young of 2094 Middlebelt Road, was Private Harold Young. Harold is getting used to the rigid life of an Army man now and can't help showing his enthusiasm for the radio work he is learning.

Keeping house for her husband now in a small home near Camp Polk, Louisiana, is the former Helen Bury who a family when Paul Woolley. Paul also is in radio communications work, but in the Air Corps, instead.

Easter was a pleasant day for Mr. and Mrs. Dan Elliot of Detroit Street for they spent it with their grandchildren. Dinner was at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Katherine Hamilton of Lander Street in Detroit, and their son Douglas and family of Detroit were also there. It was their first Easter together since Mr. Hamilton's death, so the sunny day was touched with sadness.

Back home now are Mrs. Richard Vesey and her son, Logan Luke, who missed our bad weather last week by journeying southwest. They visit with Mr. Hal Love at Gosben, Indiana, and relatives in Elkhart and South Bend.

Taking over the PTA president's chair for the coming year will be

Mrs. Leon Bury of 29219 1st Street. Mrs. Bury has been active in school activities for many years since two older daughters have graduated from Clarenceville High. She now has a son in high school and a daughter in the second grade. Mother vice president is Mrs. Anna Kell, father vice president is Mr. George Mullin, teacher vice president Mrs. Winifred Mummery, the secretary is Mrs. Wanda Matlack, and Mrs. Gertrude Weak is treasurer.

During World War II the bituminous coal industry supplied the country with half of its total fuel and energy requirements.
