8th Army back in Japan by Christmas, I may be able to send a convoy into Pyongyang immediately."

At this point, President Truman asked: "What about Chinese intervention?"

MacArthur's reply was: "They could have intervened earlier when it would have been decisive, but that time has passed. We are no longer fearful of their intervention. Although there are several hundred thousand along the Yalu River, it is not likely that they could cause us much trouble."

MacArthur's advice on the future of Korea was: "Who should turn Korea over to the Koreans as quickly as we can and get out as quickly as we can."

TROOPS TO EUROPE

At one point, Gen. Omar Bradley asked whether MacArthur could make any troops available for Europe in the next two months.

MacArthur replied: "Yes, I think a division can be made available early in 1951."

Bradley also remarked that he hoped MacArthur wouldn't have the same trouble he had with American pilots in Europe about using up railroad bridges that were needed later for rehabilitation.

"I have the same trouble," MacArthur replied. The stenographic notes show laughter at this point.

Only other laughter came when John Muccio, U. S. ambassador to Korea, proposed using sound trucks for propaganda purposes to sell democracy to the Korean people.
