Candles Light Home Wedding

MRS. JAMES MELVIN COX

White tapers lighted an altar at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Howard, which was decorated with flowers everywhere June 14, when their daughter Dorothy Anna became the bride of James Melvin Cox. Mr. Cox's parents are the J. Cecil Coxes of 14 Mile Road, Walled Lake.

Following the rites, read at 8 p.m., the newlyweds greeted guests at a reception in the Howard home at 27995 Halsted Road. They left later for a short motor trip. Upon their return they will make their home at 24 North Devonshire, Ypsilanti, while they continue their studies at the University of Michigan and Michigan State Normal College.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white nylon with a bustle draped skirt which fell to a cathedral train. The bodice was accented by a yoke of chantilly lace, while more chantilly lace was fashioned into a cap securing the fingertip illusion veil. White rosebuds and carnations enveloped a white orchid to compose the bridal bouquet.

The bride's attendant, Roseann Staszewich of Ferndale, wore a pale green taffeta dress with net over-

Temperance Group Hears Mrs. A. G. Leonard

"Let us have faith" was the topic of the talk given by Mrs. A. G. Leonard June 21 when the Elsie High Women's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of Mrs. Martha Schroeder. Devotions were given by Mrs. Ruth Erwin. The next meeting of the group will be a picnic in the city park.

skirt, net stole, and net headpiece. Pink carnations and double daisies composed her bouquet. Charles C. Cox, bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Dr. H. H. Savage of Pontiac's First Baptist Church officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Long sleeved, the gown had a hoop skirt ending in a long train. A scalloped hand made crown of seed pearls and rhinestones, and a string of pearls, a gift of the groom, completed the bridal costume. Patricia carried a bouquet of 10 white orchids with tinted lips.

Orchids were the flowers carried by matron of honor Mrs. William Lantto and bridesmaids DeLores Crump and Irene Schoenholz Foster. Mrs. Lantto wore blue lace over crepe and the bride's maid's gown was made of nylon net with hoop skirts, one in or-child and the other apple green. Their headpieces were made of three small phalaenopsis.

Charles E. Forster, Jr., performed the duties of best man at the 8 p.m. wedding, assisted by ushers John Samson and Donald Mackie. Carol Clem was flower girl, and Lloyd Lantto was ring bearer.

Albert Bolitho provided organ selections at the wedding and accompanied Laura Jean Stevens, who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Blue dinner dresses with matching accessories and corsages of three phalaenopsis were selected by the mothers of the couples. Mrs. by the mothers of the couples. Mrs. by the mothers of the couples. Mrs. by the mothers of the couples.

Later the couple, with the bride clad in brown coin polka dot nylon, left for a tour of southern Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. They will make their home at 23915 Grand River upon their return.

Italy has purchased 1,200,000 tons of American bituminous coal for the second quarter of this year, three times her purchases in the January - March period.

Floral Background For Nuptial Vows

Flowers -- in baskets, in head-dresses, in corsages -- formed the background June 16 for the candle-light wedding of Patricia Ann McFarland and Joseph Meyrelles. The couple repeated their vows at St. Paul's Lutheran Church before Rev. Walter Lutkowsky.

The new Mrs. Meyrelles is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland of 23915 Grand River. Her husband is the son of the J. A. Meyrelles of 21214 Middlebelt Road.

Slipper satin with net, rhinestones and inserts of chantilly lace composed the bride's gown for the double ring ceremony. Long sleeved, the gown had a hoop skirt ending in a long train. A scalloped hand made crown of seed pearls and rhinestones, and a string of pearls, a gift of the groom, completed the bridal costume.
