able slavery. By the Northwest Ordinance, slavery was perpetually outlawed. Farmington people were for the most part unalterably opposed to the slave trade and were vigorously abolitionist in their views, and some, irrespective of religious opinions, actively helped fugitive slaves to escape from the South to Canada.

Freedom of religion went hand in hand with friendly co-operation in emergencies. Churches on occasion shared each other's houses of worship. Two congregations bought a bell in partnership. Co-operation! But more of that later.

One of the striking instances of collaboration and simultaneous difference of opinion cropped up in 1836, only 12 years after the first white settler felled his first tree.

BARN RAISING

The township's first barn-raising, without-whiskey was in progress on the farm of a Fundamentalist minister near what is now Farmington and Thirteen Mile Roads. Neighbors from miles around gathered to help.

In the course of the work, an early chronicler records, "an insuperable obstacle was encountered, and the workmen, under trying conditions, to spread the Gospel."

Mr. Lyon later adapted the old Red Store of George V. Collins (who the Civic Theater has stands) for use as a schoolroom. In that building Hervey P. Dalley taught classes and, Mr. Woolley preached.

Engagement Revealed

Jendritz stated that in the last fiscal year 806 new clubs were formed. The Lions International was founded in 1917. Jendritz was president of the Farmington Lions for the year 1950 - 51.

After the convention, Mr. and Mrs. Jendritz continued on a trip to Philadelphia, Valley Forge and New York. General Washington's winter headquarters, and other points of interest in the early history of the United States.

Custard Fits In Many Meal Plans

Custard is a dessert that should be considered "special" in many ways, says Mary Morr of the foods and nutrition department of the Michigan State College school of home economics. It's often considered a part of soft or bland diets, but in reality will fit in with any diet, she asserts.

Custard is highly nutritious since it is prepared from milk and eggs. It is very easy to prepare either as a baked custard or as a stirred custard. It is relatively inexpensive to serve in relation to its nutritive value.

Another feature of custards is often overlooked, Miss Morr says. It is the fact that custard can be adapted to many combinations to give variety to desserts.

Stirred custard, served plain, is at its best if it is thoroughly chilled before it is served. The chilling seems to bring out the creamy goodness of the custard. It should be served cold right up to the time it is served at the table. Stirred custard lends itself to excellent combinations of cakes or fruits.

A particularly refreshing spring-like dessert is made by serving well-chilled soft custard over sponge cake or lemon chiffon cake. The fresh strawberry season offers an excellent chance to pour soft custard over angel cake and give it a liberal portion of sweetened strawberries.

If you are a homemaker who likes to bake her own angel food cakes, don't forget that the egg yolks are left, the perfect beginning for the creamy stirred custard to serve with the cake. You recall that two egg yolks have the thickening power of one whole egg.

See Decline In Breeding Stock

Sharp-tail grouse and prairie-chicken numbers appear to be down 10 to 30 per cent this year as compared to last year, according to a spring survey of northern courtship areas by conservation department field men.

The spring observations may only reflect a temporary setback, however game men do not exclude the possibility that this may be the start of the downward trend in the population cycle.

Sharp-tails, most numerous of the two species, are believed down about 10 per cent in their upper and northern lower peninsula range. About 60 per cent more actually were observed on Drummond Island dancing grounds, about the same number in the eastern upper peninsula, but fewer in the western upper peninsula, particularly in the Sturgeon River state forest.

In the northern lower peninsula, fewer sharp-tails were checked in the previously abundant area, southeastern Kalkaska County. New colonies showed up in northeastern Kalkaska, eastern Antrim and southern Osage counties. None of the 100 Canadian sharp-tails were stocked in Osage two years ago. Another possible explanation is that a few of the extra colonies in these counties might be birds which scattered from the open season counties below.

Less favorable was the 30 per cent apparent decrease in prairie-chicken numbers in all the northern lower peninsula range. . . not just in the four counties open to chicken and sharp-tail hunting last fall, Kalkaska, Crawford, Roscommon and Missaukee.

Bituminous coal contributed 44.8 per cent of the total energy consumed in its competitive market in 1950.

Expect To Complete City Hall Repair Next Week

Work is expected to be completed early next week on the repair of the front of the Farmington Municipal Building. It was announced Monday.

Workmen are speeding completion of the repair work so that the barricade can be removed and the building can be put back in normal operation. At the present time the main entrance is blocked and customers must use the side entrance. Last week all of the loose concrete was removed prior to waterproofing. The front of the building is being caulked and water proofed and a new sandstone colored paint added.

the Farmington School at 12:15. There will be a 35c charge the first day and 25c thereafter. A treasure hunt will be held at all the playgrounds on Friday for those who do not make the swimming trip.

On Monday youngsters from all playgrounds will visit the Detroit Zoo. Because only a limited number can go, youngsters are requested to register for the trip at their playground. On Tuesday, Farmington playground youngsters will go to Kent Lake for Red Cross swimming. All of the playgrounds will remain open for children who do not go swimming. A trip to Greenfield Village will be held on Wednesday and on Thursday youngsters from the Bond, Noble and William Grace Schools will go to Kent Lake for Red Cross swimming.

William F. Long is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Long, at 32925 Grand McCoy, Wisconsin, from Camp McCreary, Wisconsin.

Circuit Rider

Mr. Woolley was a "circuit rider"; that is, he traveled from congregation to congregation, usually on horseback, and under trying conditions, to spread the Gospel.

How many churches he visited on his circuit is not recorded. By 1839, however, the Universalists had 35 societies in Michigan, only five of which had built meeting houses. One may assume that Mr. Woolley spoke in numerous places. One minister of this day traveled a 131-mile circuit in Oakland County every four weeks, preaching 31 times a month for $120 a year in anything but money.

Mr. Lyon was imbued with a great idea: to establish a liberal church in which members of any faith would be welcome.

The real reason for not designating the church as Universalist, for that was a term used by Fundamentalists as an epithet of contempt. (The "heretic" Universalists, on the other hand, referred to the Fundamentalists, because of their belief that only the chosen few could enter heaven, as Partalists.)

Mr. Lyon selected the name Union Church, adopting the title from the celebrated book "Union" written a century earlier by the Rev. James Reily of London, which crystallized Universalist thought.

You're lucky people — you know why? Cause our ad is a poem each 4th of July. It's probably not the best you've ever read, But it causes us to scratch our head.

We mustn't out like this just once a year We won't go further so you've nothing to fear. We've told you already about the hams we've got And the price on them is still really hot. Oh how about a roast from a lean pork loin? It's off the rib end and you don't need much coin. For 39c a pound they're cheap — wouldn't you say? The cheapest meat you've found in many a day.

We have Conroy's coffee at just 75c a pound, It's fresh from the roaster and never been ground. Don't matter if yer pot's a perc or a drip, We'll spin the dial and let 'er rip. Suppose you'll want some potato salad, too. Well, I'll tell you what you wanna do. Stop around here and git yer eggs fresh from the farm. We're sellin' 'em so fast it's causin' the hens alarm. Now the eggs are all boiled — the potatoes are fixed, If you had some dressing you could git this thing mixed. We've got the dressing — the Salad Bowl brand. For 49c a quart it's really grand. Now this is all done — and you must agree That you're mighty glad and so are we. For as poets we stink — but then we did try. And we'll not do it again 'til next 4th of July.
