

State Police Start New Recruit School

A class of 26 recruits has begun a course of instruction at the Michigan State Police training school at East Lansing headquarters.

The course will require from nine to ten weeks and cover a wide variety of subjects. Upon graduation, trainees are placed on probation for six months before being confirmed in their appointments.

This is the tenth post-war session of the school and the third in which married men as well as single men were accepted.

Graduation has been tentatively scheduled for September 7.

COMMON CLASSROOM GOALS TO BE TOPIC AT U-M CONFERENCE

Common goals being sought in the classrooms of Michigan's high schools and at the University of Michigan will be the subject of a conference at the University on Friday, July 27.

An all-day session has been arranged by a committee headed by Clyde Vrooman, director of admissions at the University, with the following objectives:

1. To acquaint teachers at the high school and university level with current practices in the classrooms at both levels.
2. To permit the exchange of information on classroom goals, procedures, materials and equipment.
3. To stimulate experimentation in instructional methods.
4. To find common interests and problems in subject matter courses.
5. To find new and better ways of helping students make the transition from high school courses to University courses.

SPRINGBROOK SCENES

MRS. HOWARD LEGG

Seaman Jim Brodel of Randall Road and Seaman Tommy Goers of Springbrook Drive recently met in Sasebo, Japan, and enjoyed a shore leave together. The boys enlisted in the Navy at the same time and completed their training together before being assigned to different ships.

Marine Pfc. George Goers met Al Handehins of Alyce Kaye, when he was temporarily transferred to Little Creek, Virginia, from Camp Lejeune, for a three weeks special training course. Al is stationed at the Marine base at Quantico, Virginia.

Little one-year old Diana Barnes was stricken with pneumonia and was rushed to the Redford Receiving Hospital where she responded favorably to treatment. She is now well enough to be at home.

Mrs. Esther Heath entertained 13 of her relatives and friends at a plastic demonstration on Thursday afternoon at her home on Shiloh-see.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mahoney and family of Grace Street left Sunday for a motor trip to Hamilton, Ontario, and other points in Canada. They are going by Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rudy visited their newlywed daughter, Mrs. Robert Squire Cushman, in Owosso last week.

Janet Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ford, celebrated her sixth birthday Saturday by entertaining her kindergarten friends with a party.

Mrs. Margaret Zehner, Mrs. Lattie Deaven and Mrs. Esther Heath acted as a "bon voyage" committee to see Mrs. Corine Moldenhauer safely off on her trip to visit relatives in Georgia.

The Charles Taylor family had a picnic lunch Sunday at the lake to celebrate Mrs. Taylor's birthday.

Marine Staff Sergeant Norman Goers was at home on a five day leave from Cherry Point.

FESTIVE STUFFED HAM.
Fruit stuffed ham slices present an attractive serving. Spread a 1 1/2-inch ham slice with raisin stuffing (moistened with orange juice), then top with the second slice of ham. Stick wooden picks through both slices to hold them in place. Sprinkle brown sugar over the ham and stick with cloves. Place on a rack in an open roasting pan and cook in a 300 degree oven for 1 1/2 hours.

Moral supremacy is not the only one that leaves monuments and not ruins behind.

TEETH FOR TWO. — Felicitas von Sendenhorst, 20, Hunter College zoology student who aspires to be a veterinarian, takes a professional gander at the choppers of "Miss Ellie" hay-burner Vincent Hayes of Milford, a former Novi resident, had the misfortune to have his hand caught in the hook of a hay fork, making it necessary to have several stitches taken. He is getting along nicely.

Perish the thought that Farmington is a week end traffic-hemmed oasis! We watched the sun set serenely Sunday evening from the Metropolitan Beach at St. Claire Shores, and thought we'd see it rise again before we finally reached familiar territory. Never really knew before what a camel caravan could be like, even remembering Orchard Lake Road on a warm Sunday. So, best take our advice and stick to all the pretty little lakes that surround our Home Sweet Home.

Comes picnic and swimming time, Grandpas and Grandmas come into their baby-sitting own, as far as the youngest fry are concerned. Keeping a placid, peaceful countenance regardless of grandchild Linda's antics is first-time Grandma, Mrs. Harold McCague of 29135 Scotland Street. She brought 15-month-old Linda to visit her boy-friend twin at our house and loved every minute of their mischievous play.

And here is where the "calm grandma-madness" comes in. When the little pal returned from one of their numerous missions to other rooms and stood innocently before us with outstretched hands, her calm comment was: "Linda has an egg, and Freddie has an egg." ... Over my carpet!

A sense of humor, spirit of sacrifice, and calm assurance is something all parents have to acquire, and do it all over again when they become grandparents! Pinning diapers on the line this week is "Grandma Shafter," Mrs. Harry Shafter of 2924 List Street, whose newest grandchild is Catherine Virginia, daughter of Edward and Violet Shafter. The new little gal weighed an even seven pounds and was named after her other grandma, Mrs. Angel Minchett of Lincoln Park. Rumors have it that she's going to have a new house right next to Grandma's on List Street.

There will be six children in the family by the time September rolls around and the Nahon family of Ypsilanti move to List Street. Mr. Nahon, an attorney, has purchased the large Carlton Harbourn home at 2924 List Street, which is conveniently right across the street from Central School's playground. The Harbourns intend to sell their furniture during the summer and live this fall at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Bernard Mattheis of Detroit. Christmastime will see them at Fort Lauderdale, Florida, where they're going to build a new home and spend their "golden years".

The Harbourns' grandson, Tommy, who is the son of Bob and Donna Harbourn of St. Francis Street, celebrated his second birthday on Monday. And a celebration it was since Tommy has finally recovered from trench-mouth, which they believe he contracted from a public drinking fountain. His three-year-old cousin, Mary Carole Mattheis, also has had her grandparents worried. She has been under care for rheumatic fever, which followed a bad case of flu.

Other long-time residents leaving List Street are the Howard Nelsons, who moved last week to their new home on Stamford, near Loh Valley Park. They have sold their former home and its new owners are Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, who have sold their home in Hazel Park to move here. Their two children are Suzanne, age six, and Billy, age two.

The Hedley's daughter, Margaret, and her husband, Donald Schlack, with their two-year-old son Tommy had traded houses with the Hedleys last Spring. But now they have purchased their own newly-built home in Redford, and will be leaving in soon. Mr. and Mrs. Hedley intend to find renters for the other house.

There were 141 high school students, dressed in white, in the hand shell at Michigan State College and among the proud parents out front were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Waack of Scotton Street. A daughter, Maureen, completed her three-weeks' private trumpet course by playing in the band. She also completed a short course in music therapy.

U-M DISPLAY SHOWS IRISH HILLS 15,000 YEARS AGO

A place of Michigan's Irish Hills and some of their inhabitants of 15,000 years ago have been reproduced in a new diorama just added to the University of Michigan Museums.

Interest in the exhibit is centered on a group of mastodons, elephants, bison, and other animals, and a color wheel taking about a minute to complete a cycle. The changing sunset in the diorama is used for the first time in the United States.

The entire diorama was created by George Marchand, well known museum artist.
