You don't have to be a political weatherman to see that most of the world is being saturated with the dirty drizzle of welfare statism. More and more people are forgetting their own individual ambitions, aspirations and potentialities to latch unto that wonderful idea of mass security. In those countries, however, where this socialistic smog has already settled, we bet there are those who wish they had made hay while freedom shone . . . who wish they had used their freedom to foster the ideals of freedom.

Because we sincerely believe this, we are dedicating this series to the proposition that individual enterprise and initiative are the firmest factors in the foundation of our country, and that as soon as people cease to think in terms of individual responsibility and self-betterment, they will give up anything to the promise of physical security. So for ourselves and the independent businessmen, our dealers and jobbers, on whom our business is built, we offer over five thousand dollars in awards to foster individual betterment and enterprise, and to say, "Let's Make Hay While Freedom Shines."
