OLD NEIGHBORHOOD
CLUB HOLDS 10th
ANNUAL SESSION

Twenty-two persons attended the Old Neighborhood Club annual get-together and dinner held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parmale on Fourteen Mile Road.

This was the tenth anniversary of the club and the third time Mrs. Parmale has been the hostess.

The committee which planned the dinner had two tables loaded with all kinds of food to satisfy vigorous appetites.

Following the dinner was a short program. Frank Steele spoke of the death of Arthur Green, Floyd Nichols commented on the death of Clint Wilber and Belle McCracken spoke of Emma Reed's son's death.

After this, Frank Steele gave a parody on the old familiar poem, "Fifty Years Ago, applying it to West Farmington School."

Lulu Becker Going, who was born in Farmington and taught school in Farmington Village, made a few remarks.

Jessie Power Parmale had a plaque with an interesting history. The plaque is about 50 years old.

It seems, in order to raise money for persons in military service at that time, any person who paid five cents could have his name written on it. Jessie read the names and it brought back memories of many persons who had been long forgotten.

The remaining time was spent in reminiscing about past times. Election of officers returned the same people; Harry N. McCracken, president, and Bertha Steele, secretary-treasurer.

Guests of the club who were later made members are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goig of Pontiac and Alice Bigelow of Fourteen Mile Road.

TOOK SERVICES

The Rev. James H. Morris, Vicar of St. Martin's Episcopal Church, took the services for the Rev. A. C. Miller of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church while he was away on his vacation for the month of August.

Did you know accidents cost more than 17 million man-days of work on American farms last year?

Following safe practices will keep this menace from spreading to your farm. Handle your tractor with respect. It can do the work of 50 horses, but if improperly handled it can become a killer.

"The Economy Run gave me proof that Ford Trucks cost less to run than any truck I ever owned," says John Vander Werf.

John G. Vander Werf's 1950 Ford F-6 Dump Truck with Power Pilot was one of 5,000 Fords that took part in the nationwide Ford Truck Economy

"I kept daily expense records in the 6-month run," he says. "I drove my F-6 Ford 12,159 miles, with an average load of almost 15,000 lbs. and made 3,126 stops. I got regular service from my Ford Dealer. Gas, oil, maintenance and repairs cost me $461.34... that's a running cost of only 3.79 cents a mile!"

Ford Trucks with the POWER PILOT can save you money on any truck job! The Ford POWER PILOT gives you the most power from the least gas. Only Ford in the low-price field has it!
