BOW AND ARROW DEER HUNTERS START OCTOBER 1

As many as 18,000 bow and arrow hunters may stalk deer in the 36-day season which gets underway October 1, the conservation department estimates.

The record set last year, 15,743 licensed big game archers, has an excellent chance of being topped with the fast growing favor of bow and arrow style hunting. Steady increase in archers has been noted since 1945 when only 1,800 purchased licenses.

Liberalization of the 1951 season permits the taking of either sex deer in more counties than ever before. Male or female deer may be hunted through November 5 in 19 counties in the state, except Keeweenaw, Houghton, Dickinson, Menominee, Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego, Clare, Chippewa, and Drummond islands, and parts of Bay and Huron. In listed counties only male deer with three-inch or more antlers continue to be lawful. Either sex whitetails are legal through December 15 in Allegan County.

argue that reorganization can be accomplished, readily.

What can YOU do about it? If you have not written a letter recently to your representative and senator at Washington and Lansing, insisting on reduced spending for public services from top to bottom, you have contributed indirectly to the inflation trend.

If you have not voted for candidates whose record is clearly one for fiscal sanity, you also have added to the fuels of more inflation.

The situation, serious as it appears, is not hopeless IF enough citizens arouse themselves to do something about it.

These personal observations were prompted in part by an interesting booklet, "The National Economy in 'Time of Crisis', which came into our hands the other day. The booklet consists of a series of lectures sponsored by the New Jersey Bar Association.

Dr. Walter E. Spahr, chairman of the Department of Economics, New York University, forecasts further depression of our dollar value as our Federal Reserve System is protected from control by the President.

Dr. Spahr concluded with the following indictment:

"Our government is doing many things that have characterized the beginning of the end of a strong nation. We seem unable to make ourselves realize this fact. We seem still to believe in the European adage that Providence protects fools, children, and the United States. We are showing ourselves to be a glib, irresponsible and foolish people. We refuse to look at the basic causes of our present situation, and, like the French 160 years ago, we play with symptoms by creating, as did they, Laws of Maximum."

"We are rushing into totalitarianism through all the doors that our government officials have thus far been able to open. And when the President encroached upon the independence of the Federal Reserve System on February 1, there was opened another and very dangerous door which it is widely supposed no thoughtful President would ever dare to push through."

This column of the "Michigan Mirror" is another reminder that the financial problems of Michigan governments, states as well as cities, are largely the indirect result of policies fixed at a national level at Washington itself.

As long as our dollar is continually depreciated in value, one of two things must follow. Our citizens must give up some public services they now enjoy. This means the lowering of our standard of living — something we all are loath to forsake.

Or the citizens must be prepared to pay the price of inflation by ever higher taxes in a perpetual cycle until the point of diminishing returns is finally reached.

All of this may serve to publicize the need of reorganization of government itself whereby public services, instead of being ever augmented, may be actually curtailed. Reorganization itself will achieve little economy unless the citizen is willing to forego some of the benefits he now receives. The record of certain pressure groups in getting in all they can for themselves at Washington and Lansing does not
