A Store It Is Not Worth Advertising.

A writer with a gift for phrasing once wrote: "If your store is not worth advertising, advertise it for sale." His phrase runs trippingly but his logic halts.

To sell a store that is "not worth advertising" would be to defraud the buyer—s, that the advice is ethically unsound.

Of course there are not many stores that are not worth advertising—in this town, perhaps, none at all. The fact is that no store ever gets to be worth very much—beyond the mere open market value of stock and fixtures—until it has been adequately advertised. Until then it has exerted no influence as an organization, equipped for useful service to the people. It has simply been a place where certain things were kept for sale.

After it has had the breath of life put into it by advertising it becomes a store, in the militant sense—intent upon winning friends, upon the problems of growth.

The dull store in this town can be rejuvenated in a month until it finds a place in the procession—but only through advertising. If, however, the store were not "worth advertising," it would be more commendable to close up entirely than to try to "sell" it to somebody else.

Can you imagine what your store would have been like now if you had never advertised? And then—can you imagine how much greater it would be now if you had advertised five times as much.

If your advertising is adequate, there are people at this moment being influenced by it to make an unintended visit to your store.

You will not often need to buy anything that is not advertised—nor will you often profit in such purchases.

The First Sabbath-School Began in "Sooty Alley"

"Bobby Wild Goose and his ragged regiment" was the name hoisted after Robert Raikes, the first modern Sunday-school advocate, and his scholars. The thoroughfare was "Sooty Alley," and the scholars were the ragged boys who toiled in the pin factories of Gloucester, England. Robert Raikes paid Mrs. Brandon, a poor woman, one shilling each week to teach the boys the bible. That was in 1780. Four years later there were 250,000 boys and girls attending Sunday-school in the kingdom. Today the Sunday school hour in city or village, the civilized world over, resembles Lilliputian land on dress parade. Streets leading to churches are bousy with lads and lassies, not ragged, but dressed in their best, going happily to "hear the word'nous story." Thousands now do the work Robert Raikes started.

One of the greatest factors in developing the Sunday-school in America is the Sunday-school Union. E. P. Bancroft is the present secretary. This organization has been laboring in the field for 91 years. Last year it established 1878 new Sunday-schools in destitute places and organized 724, a total of 2,602 set in operation, with 102,034 members. The society employed 297 missionaries. It received $215,613 and spent $200,017. Besides the work of this organization, each denomination has its own missionaries in the field recruiting for its Sunday-schools.

TOLSTOY IN YOUTH AND AGE.

When Tolstoy was young and full of energy and passion he acted as his inner nature prompted him—keeping himself aloof from the outside world, indulging in various orgies and finally marrying a lovely girl and having a large family, etc. When becoming older and his life's natural pleasures losing their attraction, he commenced preaching "passive resistance," edifying for every one and stoicism generally.—London Anglo-Russian.

WHERE, OH, WHERE?

The old landlord of a small country inn was sitting listlessly before the fire in the bar parlor when the door opened and a loud-voiced young fellow exclaimed:

"Hallo, grandad! Get your frame in circulation! Don't sit round here like an old woman! I want accommodation for man and beast."

"Where's the man?" asked the old landlord in a flash.—The Bits.

COARSE WORK.

Seven-year-old Millicent, the milliner's child, was gazing in wonder for the first time at an ostrich.

"Oh, mamma!" she exclaimed, "whoever trimmed that poor bird showed perfectly horrible taste—look at the way the tips are arranged!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

PLACE FOR SKIPPERS.

"I say, steward," said the passenger on the ocean liner, "there seems to be a lot of live things on that cheese you just served."

"Sure, sir," replied the steward; "and where would you expect to find skippers, if not at sea?"—Yonkers Statesman.

BEST GREETINGS

Our teeth are necessary things—God made them to be used to masticate the food we eat, but not to be abused. Decayed and broken teeth, they become a menace to our health. But well preserved, are more to us than mere material wealth.

The crown and bridge work we have done has never been excelled. In spite of many obstacles, our fillings all have held. Our plates are made to stay where put; it is not on our docket to manufacture teeth for you to carry in your pocket.

Full set teeth, $4 to $8; 20 years' guarantee.

"A painful thing? Nay, forsooth! One minute, to be exact. And y'th may carry away the tooth. Which we painlessly extract."

"Fillings, Bridge Work and Crowns. (The price you see beneath.) We are never under and we make them all.

Even to full sets of teeth."

LADY ATTENDANTS

If there is one dissatisfied patient in all these years, do come to our parlors. We will please you.
