Devoted to the upbuilding of Farmington and Oakland County
And along with the wildflowers comes the dandelions.

Most of Farmington's business men seem to realize that a Commercial club or Business Men's Booster association would be a good thing for the town. Yet not one of them seems to be willing to make the first move. All the proposition needs is a start. Who will be the first man to give it a push.

That Mothers' Day is coming into a natural popularity was evidenced last Saturday by the fact that it was practically impossible to get flowers of any kind at any of the city greenhouses. Certainly is a commendable movement, and may the spirit never wane.

We're always looking for something new, and although we'll confess that our taste is not ordinarily run to poetry, yet we're in a while some great, new work in this line is unearthed. The latest is just out, and here it is. From care the bedbug quite free, He doesn't give a dir. All seasons are alike, though he seems to prefer the Spring.

A certain business man told me the other day that he didn't believe that advertising paid. As a matter of fact I can argue with him when it comes to this, and of advertising—a very small space and a very few insertions. The kind of advertising that pays is the persistent kind. Of course, the advertised article must be right and so must the price. Watch the big establishments as you will inevitably find that the bigger the concern the bigger the advertiser.

"Old Bill Shiftless, with all his faults, has some admirable traits, nevertheless, and worthy intentions fill his manly bosom. The other day he took a trip, a lengthy one, by the way, getting as far as the county seat, of the ninety cents collected for lashing down by Mrs. Bill. Up arrived Bill immediately hunted for a chair, and bought a 'schooner.' It was an ideal day and a few moments later found Bill comfortably 'scoused out in front' the leading hostelry smoking a big cigar. By the way he is a firm believer in advertising, the mouth to mouth kind, and shortly had an interested (?) audience. Says Bill, 'I'm from Farmington and let me tell you right here that, it's a some town. Not quite so big as this, but a lot more life, a everybody's got money, yes, a lots of it. Good roads over there, and believe me, I know, cause I built most of them. 'Course there is a or two bad ones in the township, built by Blank before I took a hand in the proceedin's. Mighty good set of town and village officials here two, and always constin' the taxpayers and citizens. They come to me t'other day and asked my opinion 'bout oilin' the streets and I told 'em, say I, that was the thing. 'Course I suppose, I'll have to do the work, at least oversee it. Believe it or not, that town owes me hundreds of dollars for work that I've done and ideas that I've given 'em. No, no, I don't need it. Even if I got money over our way, I'll boys, here comes my car so, 'less I'll have to be movin' cause I got an important engagement with the president of the bank for this afternoon. I've got a hundred acres over there that I'm thinking of subdividin', and I'm looking for anything in that line come over and look me up, and anybody can tell you about me. S'long.' Bill got home alright with a whole dime, which was since left his person, and next day bore rowed some tobacco and a match from me. Drawing up his chair he told me about the way he boosted for his town, and that he felt sure that his little trip to the county seat would be the means of attracting at least fifteen or twenty new residents to Farmington, and that two or three of them expected to start and operate factories. Bill's a good booster all right, but I'm afraid his prospective new residents have been scared off, fearing that he will be in full charge of village and township. And I just discovered that he forgot to return my tobacco. I heard him say too that he had some clothes to deliver tomorrow, and I'm expecting news of another booster campaign.

Blank—Do you think it will ever stop raining?
Bink—Guess so, it always has.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one cure, and that is by constitutional remedies. It is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, it swells and shuts off the perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, it will be destroyed, forever, and the cost of ten or twenty dollars will be lost. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness cured by our method that cannot be cured by any other method. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY, 103 N. Tenth St., St. Louis, Mo.
