MRS. CHARLES LOUIS LUNDBERG (Janice Lynne Steen)

When was the last time somebody helped you buy carpeting instead of trying to sell you some?

Somewhere along the line, the meaning of "Can I help you?" got changed to "Can I sell you something." Somehow, in the rush to mass merchandising, the word "customers" became "floor traffic."

And the word "volume" became law. It's happened in every business. Ours included. But one thing hasn't changed.

You can only treat people like cattle once. Because it's a pretty sure bet they won't be back. That is why we haven't changed. We still rely mainly on repeat customers.

As a matter of fact, that's where more than 2/3 of our business comes from.

You don't flash a smile and whip out an order pad on people like that. You talk to them. Get to know what they're like. What their home is like. Go out with a carload of samples, if need be. You take the time to know their needs. Whether it takes 10 minutes or 4 hours.

You don't carry junk. You don't carry seconds. You inspect every single inch of carpet before you deliver it. So you can stand behind it.

And above all, you don't give sales pitches. You give advice. Good sound, professional advice. No hard sell.

A lot of other "experts" say we miss a lot of sales like that. Maybe. But if somebody wants to look around a little more, we're all for letting him. The way we figure, after he's done a little comparing, he'll be back.
