Oil Is a Great Help

The long looked for 7,000 gallon tank of oil put in an appearance last Priday and has since been placed on the streets of the village, the work having been started or last Friday. The side streets as well as Grand River avenue, are each receiving their share, and the improvement was practically in stantly noticeable.

The oil should have been here and in place nearly two weeks ago, but through some error, either on the part of village officials or the shipping railroad, the shipment was delayed. Each is willing to place the blame on the other, and in so far as we now have the oil Parmingtonites are now content to let the matter drop, and the blame lay where it may.

Last year and the one preceding no oil was used on the local streets and as a result many were the com plaints received.

Especially on Sunday was the dust nuisance practically unbearable, with the hundreds of autos passing through town and leaving the ever present cloud of dust, which is never in the least, particuar where it lights, and has a habit of stopping in the very place where

However, all of this is now a thing of the past and we are now eaping the benefit of the oiling.

The show, while not by any neans of the Ringling and B. B. calibre, lives up to its promises and gave general satisfaction.

The parade in the evening toured the main street, and was viewed by a large crowd as was the show.

Jinx with Harger Truck

Sayres Harger's big red milk went into the ditch again last Wednesday evening, and some are beginning to believe that there is a jinx sticking around, as that truck experiences more hard luck than the Detroit Tigers in the east.

This time it was something grong with the steering gear, a loose bolt, and the truck hit a tree and on into the ditch, head first. Fortunately the driver, Harry Adams, received no injury and the big cans filled with milk and cream remained intact. Two cases of ottled milk, however, suffered.

The truck was righted this morn ng and will continue in pursuit of the iinx.

The incident was not without its funny side, either. Edgar Pierce, hearing of the accident, went down to the creek near the power house to view the remains. Ed. got up close to see it all, in fact so close to the water that he had to hang spitting on any hoor, any street care street, side or foct walk, floor or salariway of any public hall, theatre, church public building is hereby prohibited. Whoever violates this regulation will wasn't very stout, and Ed. follow the subject to a (penalty of not less than 85,000 or more than 830,00. on to a small tree limb. That's no damage done.

Ray S. Baker, the author, in an argument on immigration cited the marvelous speed wherewith the immigrant, family becomes assimilated into the national life.

"An instance of this assimilation occurs to me," he said. "I know a worthy Neapolitan, one Paoli Cenci, who came to this country three years ago. Paoli's little 'son, Francesco, an American citizen of seven, looked up from his school books the other crening to sair. "Say, pa, what year was it you Italians discovered us in P"—Chicago News.

Speaking Before One Thinks.

A friend was telling another friend the other night that Blank's was an interesting place to spend an idle hour of an evening.

"But what sort of people go there?" asked the one who was a bit particular.

"Oh, all sorts. The best people go and the worst people go—and even the common herd, like you and me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
