

Camera Club Launches Drive

The Livonia Camera Club, one of the most active amateur photographic organizations in the Detroit area, is launching its 1973 season with a membership drive.

The club is particularly interested in attracting beginning photographers, including high school or college students, according to its president, Neal Skelly.

"WE WANT the benefit of some new blood and new ideas, and at the same time we feel we have something to offer the newcomers," Skelly said. "If someone is interested in getting out of the 'snap-shot' class or wants to learn to process his own black and white prints, we have the people who can help him."

Skelly pointed out that some of the veteran club members have become accomplished enough at their hobby to score high in regular competition and black and white print competition. The other meeting is for lectures, shooting sessions and other club projects.
