Fairview Program Tests 'Interests'

FARMINGTON could work with the various

A new elementary program being tried at Farmington's Fairview school, allows the youngsters to pursue whatever "interests" them. The title, naturally, is the "interest" program. The most oppopular was backetball, followed by cooking, arts and crafts, moder building, needlepoin, and the "volunteer room." This last group made coloral stuffed toys to give to a charitable institution. With the program underway, the school is looking in still more parents in our but where their interest might lie, then picked staff who
