

Hines Park Bike-Way Plan Told

A $50,000 price tag has been placed on the bike-way that will parallel the E.N. Hines Parkway drive in western Wayne County.

The bike-way will be six feet wide and four inches thick, according to information supplied by Edwin E. Mika, parks and recreation superintendent for the County Road Commission's parks and forestry division.

Bicycle paths are an "in" thing for the ecology movement. Not only do bicycles not use irreplaceable fossil fuel, but they provide cheap transportation and safe access to public facilities for many persons.

In a memo to State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), Mika said the three-mile bike-way will provide access to picnic areas, ball diamonds, fishing sites, football fields, tennis courts and comfort stations. Various engineering services are estimated at $7,000; construction at $22,120; grading, fill, tree removal, drainage and guard rails at $18,880; inspection, signs and contingencies at $4,100.

Financing would be under a project agreement between Wayne County and the state, Dept. of Natural Resources.

Hunter Safety Offered

Hunter safety training, required of Michigan youth ages 12-16 buying their first hunting license, will be offered at Schoolcraft College later this month.

Classes will be held from 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. the Saturdays of Feb. 24 and March 3. They will be taught by Sgt. James Schrot of the Northville Township police and E.F. Petersen, college business manager. Both are certified instructors.

Included in the seven lessons to be covered are "how to live with guns and ammunition," "privileges and responsibilities of hunting," and "first aid for sportsmen."

The training is free and open to 30 young persons on a first come, first served basis. Pre-registration is necessary and may be completed by calling the college, extension 264. The program is sponsored by Schoolcraft's community services office.

Something For All At Marygrove

Registration is open through Feb. 17, the first week of spring term, continuing education classes at Marygrove College, Michigan at Wyoming, Detroit. There are 57 non-credit courses offered this term, both evenings and Saturdays.

Many Continuing Education courses offered at Marygrove are career-oriented. Among these special training courses are a course to help prepare child-care assistants; courses in business communications, shorthand and typing refresher courses.

Other new courses: Uses and Abuses of Foods and Drugs; Communication Between Parents, Teachers and Children; Between Husband and Wife - A Guide to Successful Marriage.
